Today there is a plenty of opinions whether having a part-time job for teenagers is worth it. Some people regard it as a good way for making money and obtaining time-management skills. Their adversaries believe that it negatively influences the educational process and academic performance. In this response I will describe these points of view and give my opinion on the subject.

Let's begin with the advantages of having a part-time job. First, a teenager is capable of earning their own pocket money or even save for a present for someone. Besides, it makes a young person feel independent and gives freedom. It is undoubtedly beneficial because it allows high school students to understand what an "adult life" looks like and feels like. Thus, an individual will be more prepared for it after finishing high school.

On the other hand, any job distracts teenagers from studying. People who agree on this point stress that a young person may instantly forget about school when he or she understands that it is possible to earn money without a diploma of completion of secondary education. Consequently, their GPA will be below average and they will not be able to get into a prestigious university.

From my point of view, part-time jobs do not distract high school students while attending classes. There is a couple of reasons to prove my opinion. Firstly, it definitely depends on oneself and his or her time-management skills. Secondly, such an experience will provide an individual with understanding of how money works and how difficult it is to earn a penny.

It is thought by some ^{of} high school students that they can benefit from having a part-time jobs while attending classes. In general, I agree with this statement. However, in my opinion not each and every job can be beneficial for high school students. It should not be physically hard, or take too much time. But the properly chosen job will affect the students' lives the following ways. 65

At first, it will provide a ~~feeling~~ feeling of responsibility. Usually school students are only responsible for their grades that they might not take care of. When ~~the~~ having a job, they become responsible of their income that ^{much} is countly? more important for them, as students that do not need money do not usually work. ~~results in better grades at~~ Responsible approach to work leads to sustainable career growth in future life. 67

At second, even a part-time job provides an experience ~~that is~~ that is considered by employers and results in better chances to be hired. Not only the job in the same professional sphere will be beneficial at future interviews and in ~~the~~ ^{20s}. Almost any job provides important soft skills required by any employer. Among these are such skills as dealing with bosses and colleagues, paying your income tax, complying with internal regulations and corporate ~~and~~ culture and so on.

All of the listed above is highly beneficial in adult life. ~~and this~~ ^{highlights} ~~that~~ Having a part-time job will result in more chances to be hired in future. The main point is that this job should not interfere with ~~students~~ study and should not lower the students' grades. 180

1. It is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major.

Nowadays, a lot of students hold fast to the tactic of seeking guidance from adults when deciding on a college major. Certainly, this way of choosing the main subject of your future studies has its pros and cons, hence I, on the behalf of those choosing their future college major, can both agree and disagree with the rightfulness of this statement due to a number of reasons.

To begin with, this strategy definitely has some advantages due to the obvious enough fact of adults being way more experienced than youngsters. Perhaps our parents have tried multiple kinds of jobs throughout their lives and are there to share the knowledge acquired through work with us. They are also more aware of which professions are the most stable, engaging and lucrative.

On the other hand, we should not let our parents' or any other adults' opinion take over by influencing us too much. It is crucial to be resistant to pressure and follow your own passion to have a fulfilling life, even if your idea of a perfect profession differs from your parents'. It is important to remind adults not to try to relieve their dreams through their children by ruining their ambitions, too. After all, there is no person in this world whose opinion must serve as a counterbalance to our own dreams.

In conclusion, following your parents' advice when choosing a college major may have both positive and negative consequences. To avoid falling into the negative, it is important to find balance.

~~Nowadays children more and more ask themselves~~

Nowadays children more and more ask themselves what they would like to pursue and their life goals which is mostly resulted in what college major should they choose. Some people say that it is ~~important~~ advisable in these situations to seek guidance from their parents and I strongly agree with this opinion.

On the one hand, this statement is opposed by those who believe that parents should not decide for their kids what they have to do. There are some situations where relationships in the family are not good enough and parents do not know what exactly their child is interested in. Sometimes the college major is opted with not with genuine motive which is considered wrong. It could lead to child not wanting to continue studying due to the lack of interest and the wasted potential they could have improved in an another college programme.

On the other hand, parents are people who also had this difficult choice of what to do and have gained some kind of life experience because not all of them knew exactly who would they be today. Their guidance can help massively to children. Even if the major is not the one, people always can try to do another one. Parents are those who mainly care about child's future and would always support.

Nowadays, with the rapid technological development, people can optimize their labour in many different ways, reducing the amount of the working hours. Some people say that the presently accepted standard workweek of 40 hours should be ~~reconsidered~~ reconsidered and potentially reduced to 30 hours. However, there happens to be opposing opinions to this statement. I myself am partially agree with it. Here are the reasons why.

To start with, worldwide economy overall now faces an overproduction crisis. Technological breakthroughs in robotics allow companies to enchantse their production rates disregarding the human resources. Thus, the supply market is now being overwhelmed. Tonns of products, such as cars, plastic and clothes overflow markets. The reduction of the workweeks and, consequently, the reduction of the production rates would help to tackle this issue.

Furthermore, reconsideration of the working hours would allow population to spend more time recreating, creating artwork, reading books and etc.

Hence, civilization's happiness level would grow. For example, Scandinavian countries have one of the shortest workweek standards. Interestingly, their ^{citizens'} happiness rates are one of the highest worldwide.

It is also worth mentioning that radical changes concerning the matter may have traumatic impact on the economy. Business owners would probably protest against such measures ^{because?} Moreover, ~~the~~ companies would try to sabotage these reforms, splitting the society in half. That is why some people oppose this idea.

In conclusion, I would like to outline that over time every progressive country should slowly reduce its working hours. However, relevant measures should be taken rationally and ~~for~~ very carefully in order not to ruin nation's economy.

Nowadays advanced technologies are widely used by people in different spheres of life, especially in education process. I strongly believe that remote learning through innovations like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning.

To start with, there are plenty of advantages from studying online. One of the most significant benefit is that every student can attend lectures no matter where is he. Save the workweek!

Nowadays, there seems to spread an initiative to ^{shorten} reduce the work week sufficiently - ~~by~~ by 25% (from 40 to 30 hours). Quite often ~~the~~ titles ^{like} "The People overwork ^{being} 40 hours at their job ^{during} in a week" tend to appear in the newspaper headlines, and step by step the idea goes deeper into the people's minds. ³⁰ Though, this is nothing but a one more ~~example~~ of people, totally forgetting about consequences when going for something? ^{h.}

The problem of a usual employee, that would vote for the initiative of this kind if ~~being~~ ^{being} suggested, is that they do not ~~think~~ ^{think} what goes next. The most serious disadvantage of this kind of idea is that the wages will reduce proportionally in the ~~worktime~~ ^{worktime} ~~market~~ ^{market} ~~reduce~~ ^{reduce}. Less work done - less payment received. At the same time, people would have more free time at the week, thus, having more spare time and less money to spend. This might lead to the service sector decline - less people will need services due to lower income. As well, it is vital to remember that if made, the change will touch almost everyone, thus the ~~idea~~ ^{idea} including the critical ~~economic~~ ^{economic} spheres like ~~medical services~~ ^{medical services} or food production. This will lead to the sufficient ~~reduce~~ ^{reduce} in the availability of service to an ordinary human, as well as to the ~~great~~ ^{great} possible lack of products, shortening ~~from~~ cars and finishing with food. This means that even if ~~any~~ ^{any} human ~~with~~ ^{with} takes 2 jobs instead of one to feed his family, he might have just nothing to spend the money earned on. Finally, ~~not to be~~ ^{not to be} ~~forget~~ ^{forget} that the employers will ~~definitely~~ ^{definitely} enforce their ~~rights~~ ^{rights} to ~~work~~ ^{work} overtime still, as otherwise the companies might become just not profitable to exist and, thus, will be closed, which will ~~just~~ ^{just} make the situation with the lack of workplaces even worse.

Concluding, ~~we~~ I can sum up ~~that~~ all things just mentioned and state, that no one will win from reducing the workweek, apart from, perhaps, some a group of highly paid professionals, while a ~~of~~ skill from a minority. ~~And~~ Thus, to not let the ~~major~~ overwhelming majority suffer, do not ~~at~~ attempt to reduce the working time.

Nowadays almost every adult has a job and has to work 40 hours a week because it is a standart. Some people believe that it is an appropriate number of hours. However, others disagree and insist that it should be reduced to only 30 hours per week.

In my opinion, workers need more free time for their own lives. To begin with, with such high number of working hours many of them do not have an opportunity to spend time with their family and friends, they are not able to have hobbies as they come home from work worn-out and still have chores to do. Moreover, it leads to being exhausted and causes different psychological problems, such as burn-out or depression. Also, if standart workweeks are reduced to 30 hours, it will have a positive impact on productivity because the workers will have much more energy and interest.

I know it is a very serious problem because I have experienced it as a member of family of a worker. My mom used to work at the bank. Not only did she spend so much time there, but she also had to do some of the paperwork at home which meant she could not play with me often. This fact always made me very upset as I wanted to spend time with her but could not. These reasons mentioned above are what makes me believe that the standart number of working hours per week should be reconsidered and reduced. It will be good for both people and companies.

It is common knowledge that teenagers feel under the pressure while when they have to decide on a college major. Not only do the adolescents have to make a choice on what they enjoy more, but also they have to choose their future career. So, the question is whether teenagers should ask their parents for help and seek guidance from them or not.

On the one hand, making a choice what major a teen should choose is his first step to the adult life. Therefore, trying to lend a helping hand to the child might lead to opting for the wrong subject to study due to the pressure that parents could exert on their kid. Moreover, persuading a teen to follow the steps of ~~their~~ his parents may also ~~mislead~~ ^{mislead} him, ~~from the fact that~~ is making the However, on the other hand, the adult's involvement might contribute to the right choice of the major. Undoubtedly, our parents have much more experience in a lot of spheres, consequently, not listening to their pieces of advice will be an inaccurate thing to do. The case here is that they do not want to do you any harm and they can offer good ideas, so together you can come ~~to~~ ^{find} a great choice.

All in all, my attitude to the parent's guidance when deciding a college major is positive. The reason is that it will be much more effective to think on it together and the best solution will come up. However, the teen must be careful as some negative aspects such of parent's help can mislead him.

Due to the rapid development of technologies throughout the last decades, ~~the~~ new ways of learning have been introduced recently. For instance, remote learning is widely used all over the globe and I stick to the opinion that it can be as effective as traditional in-person learning. The following reasoning will be provided to support my point of view.

To begin with, the effectiveness^{ss} of studies depends on the desire of a person to ~~enter~~ gain knowledge. The one who wants to enlarge the boundaries of the familiar world would do it by any means. Moreover, hadn't remote learning been used during the pandemic, lots of people wouldn't have been able to get proper education at all. The society overcame the COVID-19 times by having classes in Zoom with the only condition of switching the cameras on. Such measure provided teachers with an opportunity to control students' involvement in the curriculum. But for the remote learning, pupils would have to spend time to commute to extra courses in their daily life. It's more rational to ~~be satisfied~~ do extra preparation before^{the} classes than to waste time in the underground. 156

However, it's worth mentioning that reluctant students may constantly skip classes by explaining that with poor internet connection or ignore the rule to switch cameras on in order to idle?. Furthermore, home atmosphere might distract students and decrease their concentration.

All in all, all the above makes me sure that remote learning doesn't influence one's ~~ability~~ ^{capacity} to learn effectively. Undoubtedly, it is one of the currently developing ways of learning that has ^{more} advantages over the traditional ways. 80
than disadvantages

Nowadays a lot of high school students have part-time jobs while attending classes. It is considered that they can benefit from this. In this article I am going to show my agreement with the statement by giving reasons and examples.

To begin with, the greatest advantage of taking up a part-time job is the chance to earn some money. It is obvious that students need financial support while studying, so this kind of employment can enable them to gain money and spend it on the most needed things. In addition, having their own money means being more independent from parents and teaches young people how to manage their budget effectively. In fact, this can be a very essential skill they will need in their further lives.

To continue with, ^{while} doing a part-time job high school students can gain a lot of working experience. Working in a group can teach them cooperation skills, managing ^{and} communicating with others. Moreover, dealing with different people means using psychological strategies and techniques require a lot of important knowledge which students can share with each other while working. After graduating such students will be more successful in being employed due to this experience.

Besides, when students do a part-time job they can see the peculiarities of different professions. Trying new jobs can help students to decide whether the occupation they have chosen is suitable for them or not and attempt to find a more appealing one.

In conclusion, I strongly believe that having a part-time job is beneficial for high school students as this contains a variety of both economical and social advantages.

Major part of contemporary ~~adults~~ adults spend a lot of time - 40 hours as it is ~~given~~ given in the statement - working, so they can pay for rent, food, education of their kids and other necessities, or, in other words, ~~afford~~ ³⁰ living. However, this much time ¹⁰⁰ devoted to work ~~leaves~~ ^{leaves} almost no time for ~~oneself~~ oneself. Being that current work week is 40 hours, some people may want to reduce it down to 30 hours. Personally, I disagree with this position as well as with the given statement, and I want explain it and elaborate on my disagreement.

On the first glance, ¹⁰⁰ 30 hours work week looks like an excellent opportunity to improve work-life balance and devote more time to self-improvement and family. However, ~~most of~~ ¹⁰⁰ people usually ~~don't~~ do not know how to properly arrange their free time, despite time being the scarcest resource. Too much of free time for a person usually leads to procrastination and sometimes even depression.

Another potential benefit of the 30 working hours week is the reducement of ~~overworking~~ overworking. Unfortunately, however, reducement of working hours is not a solution for such a problem and the perfect example of that is Japan, where overworking is rather a trend. Due to cultural nuances of this country people will still try to work as much as they can in desire of better career career, better social status and higher salary. ¹⁰⁰ pursuit ~~like~~ ⁹

To conclude, I want to say that people are not yet ready for reducement of working hours as this will lead to obscure, yet tremendous fundamental problems.

It goes without saying that choosing a college major is important. ~~Many children are in trouble~~ It is hard for many children to make a decision by themselves. That is why they usually ask their parents for help. To my way of thinking, it is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major.

First of all, parents are more wisdom than kids. They are more life-experienced and know more about demand on professions, wages, work conditions nowadays etc. This information is really valuable for their children because it will help them to determine their purposes for future and choose the most suitable option.

Secondly, ~~parents~~ most of parents are pron to believe in their children and support them. They would not insist on a college major that is not appreciated by their kids. In that case, parents learn information about a college, read ~~series~~ ^{and} articles, students' achievements in order to make a better choice for their children and give advice.

However, there exist such parents who prohibit their kids to choose by themselves. It is clear that ~~the~~ children from such families should not ~~not~~ seek guidance from their parents because they would not get any useful information. It is better for them to find a support from friends and teachers and try to talk with their parents on this issue.

To hit the ground running, I would like to state that making a decision about ⁵⁰ junior college major at the age of 18 is definitely not a walk in the park. Since ¹⁰⁰ high school students usually have no experience, they tend to seek guidance from their parents on the issue, and although it's quite common for them to do so, there's a plethora of merits and demerits to it.

First things first, it's no surprise that adults are way more competent on the topic of choosing a college major. They're the ones that have hands-on experience and a more mature perception of ¹⁰⁰ which specialists are in high demand at the moment.

However the case when a parent is well-educated and knowledgeable is not applicable to everyone. Some students might not have access to an adult, whose ¹⁵⁰ experience is admirable? Therefore, in situations like this the teenager is in desperate need of critical thinking skills, that will help them to learn from the inauspicious ^{experience} ~~example~~ of their parents.

Moreover, a wide-spread problem of nowadays society is that we're made ²⁰⁰ to make a decision that plays pivotal role in our destiny based on either our not so abundant experience or on the view point of our parents. Due to this lack of choice the most stellar student usually ²⁵⁰ turn to their parents for advice and follow ²⁵⁰ by it despite their own preferences and tastes. That has a potential to lead to depression ²⁵⁰ and exhaustion and tiredness of their specialty or workfield. I'm firmly ²⁵⁰ convinced that a person has to take heart from what they're doing to make money. Because otherwise no success will be achieved, no progress will be made. Not only will it turn out to be a lifelong headache for them, but a stagnation for the country that they live in, as well as the human-kind in general.

Furthermore, with all the ahead of the curve technologies it's ~~a misconception~~ rather doubtful to claim that parent's advice is of utter significance to the younger generation. Although it's a double-edged sword to point out that being raised in the 21st century with all the cutting-edge technology ^{at hand} was to children's avail, there's no point denying, that it made it a lot easier for the new generation to soak in the benefits and usage of these devices ~~as fast~~ swifter.

From all of this, I'd like to infer that I don't ~~not~~ maintain the opinion that it's advisable to seek guidance from parents when choosing a career path. In spite of the fact that they're more experienced it might be ~~be~~ more efficacious for the teens to explore the multitudinous ways of shaping their destiny themselves, as it's my strongest belief that only in this case will they be contented with their choice of career.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous “tip” that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings’ grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

In developing and supporting your position, be sure to address the most compelling reasons and/or examples that could be used to challenge your position. You should write about 250 – 300 words.

Topic 1

Nowadays people are tend to have a serious approach to paving their way into future. It is primarily connected with deciding in what field ~~they~~ ^{they} should get their education. But do children who enter college need assistance or should they make such decision on their own?

It is common that children seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major. They do it to make sure they have made a right decision. Parents can share their college experience and show support to their children. It is stated that ~~it~~ teenagers whose choice of college major was approved or advised by parents are more likely to succeed in future.

However, it ~~cannot be~~ denied that sometimes parents impose their opinions. They ignore passions of their children and make them put their preferences on a back burner. For instance, families where ^{both parents} ~~many generations~~ are doctors usually want their kids to get a medical college ~~major~~ degree. Such youngsters often suffer and it takes its toll on their mental health.

^{I still} I agree that children should seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major. Personally, I am sure that I will take into account recommendations that my parents will give me before entering college. I believe elder generation has already gone through ~~this process of~~ choosing where to continue their studies, so they can get their children's back with this life-changing decision.

When school years come to an end, all students face a crucial choice that will influence their further lives. Many of them strongly believe that grown-ups are much wiser, and therefore seek advice from their parents. Here I will share my point of view on this issue.

As far as I am concerned, it is my firm belief that young people should not rely on guidance from their parents. First of all, we all have different abilities and preferences in life. Though parents usually want their children to succeed, they do often forget that the life goals of young generation don't always correlate with their understanding of happy and successful life. In addition, relatives may even project certain unaccomplished aims of youth on adolescents and deprive them from their own choice. ~~Furthermore~~ ^{Finally}, it is essential for young people to acquire a habit of making decisions and thinking with their own heads. Even if it eventually leads them to mistakes or regrets, teenagers will at least learn independence and self-reliance. Otherwise, children will face various challenges and difficulties in the future, as their parents will not always be there to provide support and guidance.

To explain my point of view, I want to share my life experience. I come from ~~the~~ family of doctors, and since the early childhood I have always been told to choose a career of dentist. My parents assured me that this decision will provide me with abundant, lucrative future. However, deep inside I had a feeling that my ~~destiny~~ ^{destiny} was different. Finally, I unexpectedly found a passion for languages! That is why I am inclined to believe that it is crucial to choose your own path that does not depend on opinion of parents.

~~Taking various aspects of this issue into consideration, I suppose that children should not rely on what their parents advise them. Thou~~

Taking various aspects of this issue into consideration, I ~~believe that even~~ suppose that, though it can be wise not to neglect the ~~good~~ words of those who are older and have rich background, the final decision ^{must} depend only on children themselves.

When talking to the students in college, you may notice how many students actually despise their major because of the fact that parents were the ones to decide on their kids' major.

It is natural for a kid to seek attention from their parents when growing up. But as the time goes, they start to get more and more independent, wanting to start their own life, ~~free~~ to be free from others. But it is a big "no" for those who raised them. ³⁰How can a parent let go of their child? Honestly, ~~easy~~ it is not that hard when you and your kid built on trust and love. Because if kids feel that they are welcome at home, ~~they won't~~ wouldn't want to cut off the contact after graduation. That kids will live a happy life, studying what they want in college, working where they want. ¹⁵⁰Get this: ~~what~~ ^{page 100} what, where, who THEY want, not their parents. So when deciding on what major to study, children should listen to their heart, follow their dreams and achieving their goals. Your kid is your most fragile possession, there should not be even one moment in life when you ~~don't~~ leave a dent on them, the life is going to take care of them leaving an emotional damage on them, so you should be a safe space for them. Children - not + puppets, which will fulfil your unachieved goals.

So when deciding on anything in life, ~~ask~~ ²⁵⁰ listen to your heart, and only after that ask for guidance of others. You have to live this life by yourself, so do yourself a favour - live it just how you like it.

Nowadays students have an ample of different opportunities, no matter where they live or how they look like. Thanks to the expansion of the Web, everyone has an enormous bunch of information to ^{discover} ~~access~~ and absorb. ~~Encouraged and~~ ^{can} ~~they~~ ~~switch~~ ~~online educational~~ resources as much as they want, ~~there are much less time to~~ ~~prepare~~ ~~struggle with~~. And if ^{the} ~~your~~ internet connection is fast enough, ^{students} ~~you~~ are even able to ~~join~~ ^{join live classes} ~~with other people~~ and communicate ^{with the teacher} ~~with them~~ using ^{only} ~~your~~ voice. ^{there is} No need to exit home or even ~~wear~~ ^{sounds} appropriate clothes! ~~and that sounds~~ ^{from} just like the distant future. Although ~~this~~ ^{sounds} wonderful, such a freedom may have some ^{dis} ~~advantages~~ ^{that}.

The main reasons ~~one~~ ^{one} ~~in~~ ^{many} dislike online classes is the lack of ~~to~~ ^{factors} that makes us ~~pay~~ ^{pay} attention. ~~Teacher~~ ^{Teachers} can't say, ~~is~~ ^{even} ~~even~~ ^{even} to them or not, especially ~~when~~ ^{all the} ~~if~~ ^{if} ~~the~~ ^{the} cameras are disabled. That's not the case ~~when~~ ^{which} ~~talking about~~ ^{when talking about} paid courses, as the teachers are not ~~obliged~~ ^{obliged} to make you study ~~has~~ ^{has}, but the Coronavirus epidemic back in 2019 had shown many flaws in educating ^{online} millions of children ~~from~~ ^{from} the governmental schools. ~~In Russia, the exam results were awful. Despite all this, should I say that~~ ^{In Russia, pupils often} ~~lost~~ ^{lost} ~~their~~ ^{their} ~~work~~ ^{work} ~~using the computer~~ ^{using the computer} ~~books~~ ^{books} with deaf ears and ignored Zoom lessons, and that's led to the worst exam ~~results~~ ^{results} ~~ever~~ ^{ever}.

Another reason online courses may cause troubles are requirements. If you don't have a mic, you can't attend the lesson. If the internet connection is slow, you can't attend, too. If your PC is broken, go figure what comes next. It's a luck ^{that} modern schools have public network rooms in them, but staying in the school ^{the} ~~hall~~ evening may be frustrating. ~~for the school~~

5. To conclude, I can neither agree or disagree that learning online is equally effective to the classroom learning. In my opinion, both of the educating methods should stay separated. In class, the student may be treated individually, and if it is important to them, they should be able to learn offline. 284 words

There is no doubt that duration of the workweek is ~~one of~~ the most controversial ^{issue} ~~issues~~ nowadays. A great number of people consider that standard workweek should be reduced from 40 to 30 hours, while others believe that presently accepted 40 working hours per week are absolutely normal. What might be the ^{so} reasons for reconsidering workweek duration?

To start with, working 40 hours per week, employees spend 8 hours at work every day, if there are two days-off during the week. Additionally, we need to consider the fact that commuting also takes a huge amount of time (from 30 minutes to 2 hours) ¹⁰⁰ each time. So, at least 10 hours ¹⁰⁰ typically white-collar worker spends at work daily. The rest of the day, including 11 hours isn't enough to have a rest, owing to the fact that 11 hours are needed to be spent for sleeping and having meals. Moreover, some issues ¹⁵⁰ and household chores might easily and randomly appear during the rest of the day. As a result, workers don't have enough time for relaxation. They ^{are} usually dissatisfied with both their work and life, as they are under stress. Thus, their productivity at work becomes lower.

Moving to the next point, ¹⁰⁰ we need to think about ^{probability} ~~opportunity~~ of having only 30 working hours weekly. Employees are bound to have more time for their enjoyable activities, because of less working hours per day. This opportunity might ¹⁰⁰ increase workers' satisfaction with ^{their} lives. Moreover, it helps to improve work-life balance. Apart from ¹⁰⁰ that, workers have a chance to spend additional hours for their hobbies or studies, which might be essential and helpful at work. As a result, employers may have more motivated workers with new, genious ideas.

In conclusion, reducing standard workweek seems to be a smart decision, due to the fact that it might make workers more motivated and give them satisfaction with their lives.

The issue of making a decision on picking a college major is troubling the minds of many young people. It is something that needs to be thought through as carefully as possible, since it might change the course of the student's life. It is debatable whether or not applicants should seek guidance from their parents on this matter.

I do not completely agree with this statement. To my knowledge, the key to picking a college major is taking into consideration the future student's interests and ~~aspiration~~ aspirations. This choice is essentially the decision on one's future career, which makes it even more scary and serious. And although it is pay for the course for young people to not be sure what to do with their life, I do not believe that they should blindly rely on their parents on this matter. It is a common occurrence for families to have the same profession: there many generational doctors and lawyers. The family history, although ~~valuable and important~~ undoubtably valuable and important, should not be the main factor for choosing a college major. ~~Many student~~ The student should be the one making the final decision after reviewing their own interests and the opinion of their parents. People who chose their college major based on the advice given to them by their parents ~~just~~ to please their family often tend to regret ~~that~~ decision overtime. ~~Since they did not follow their own dreams and goals, they are now stuck studying something that does not interest them.~~

There are few students who do not foresee their future career at all, and are not seem to be interested in anything. Although they are the minority, I think that it is definitely advisable for them to seek guidance from their parents, who might have an understanding of their child's interests and needs.

To conclude, picking a college major is a delicate decision. Applicants who have an understanding of their priorities should make the decision on their own, whereas people who are uncertain about their goals should follow their parents' advice.

Remote Learning has risen in popularity and widespread use only recently. Thanks to the pandemic that occurred 2-3 years ago, many companies ~~developed~~ started developing applications in hopes of helping people learn and teach without having to go outdoors. While this does help, in the long run this method of education is inferior to Classroom Learning.

For most, Remote Learning is something that brings them comfort. For example, it is easier to connect to or it makes it easier for people to talk and answer questions. Here lies the issue. Those are some of the only benefits of Online Education, everything else is worse than regular School or University Education. Students learn and remember much less, as there is less time little time and it will be harder to teach some subjects online. As an example, let's ~~take~~ take a maths lesson. The teacher has to wait for everyone to connect, then starts using the board, which not everyone might see. This takes a lot of time from students, especially for such a difficult subject like maths. Not to mention the unstable connection many have, this might make it impossible for some ~~to~~ people to even ~~come~~ connect.

As ²⁰⁰ was mentioned earlier, in the the biggest advantage of Remote Learning is comfort. From needing to wake up later, to being able to eat between classes, all of this is a major benefit. Being able to sleep in even a little and having the thought that there is no need to panic and run to school is relieving. Not only physically, but also mentally. Without that extra stress and with more energy, students can remember and understand what they are being taught much better, than if they were exhausted.

All in all, Classroom Learning allows for better understanding and knowledge, while Remote Learning helps have a healthier physical and mental health. From where I am standing, in-person education is a much better option.

Seeking a ~~one~~ college major for graduation and eventually employment

Nowadays learning online is very popular amount people. Some people think it is more effective than traditional learning, while others disagree. I will discuss all the statements and give my personal opinion.

On the one hand, studying through modern technologies gives us more free time. Indeed, we do not need to spend time on a road to our studying place. We can do homework or more exercises. So, it is more effective for education progress. However, if you study online it is easier to cheat on your exams, so you do not need to learn all the things. This is bad for your future, because not all exams will be online.

On the other hand, learning online depends on your personal motivation and education goals. Because nobody will see what you really do while having a class. Sometimes it is hard to concentrate on lesson when you are at home. So, people need to study only if they want. Also, humans are social-beings. It is important to have a real talk, not just sitting in front of the computer all day. For example, using traditional in-person classroom learning students can ask questions and discuss lesson with each other.

In conclusion, I want to say that traditional learning has more benefits than online learning in my personal opinion. It is easier to learn new information in-person because you can ask live questions, see your teacher. I think these things really help to be more productive. In real life you need to learn a lot of interesting things, which can be useful for your future, while ~~learn~~ if you studying through modern technologies you can just cheat. So, it is really important to be motivated all the time.

Choosing a future profession is quite difficult nowadays. Before doing that, children have to decide whether to go to a college or continue their ^{studies} ~~studying~~ at school. They are able to seek guidance from their parents or make a decision without their help.

On the one hand, it is the choice of a child ⁵⁰ which profession to choose. They are able to find a lot of information about an appropriate college on the Internet. They can read ~~many~~ ¹⁰⁰ feedbacks from students that are studying in a college or have already graduated from it. Besides, some children have bad relationships with their parents ¹⁰⁰ ✓ which makes it impossible to seek guidance from them.

On the other hand, parents are adults that can tell you more important information than students that are unexperienced. They can give you some advice on how to find and get a job with high salary. Moreover, parents know a ¹⁵⁰ lot about advantages and disadvantages of studying in a college and they can tell their children about them. Parents can motivate their children to study hard in order to apply for one of the best universities in a country that is harder while studying in a college. ¹⁰⁰ lex

In my opinion, ²⁰⁰ it is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major because pupils are often immature and unexperienced ✓ that is why they can make a wrong decision. It is essential for parents to support their children in making their choice as it is one ²⁵⁰ of the most important steps in their life. ¹⁵¹⁵

In conclusion, children should get some advice from their parents ~~when~~ when ~~deciding~~ they decide to go to a college or stay at school.

Some people reckon that high school students can benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes, whereas others disagree with their point of view. Working while ~~the~~ getting education has both advantages and disadvantages that I am going to comment on. 57

Having part-time jobs while attending classes has some benefits. Nowadays the theme of having part-time jobs while being a high school student is very relevant. Some people say that students can really benefit from it and I absolutely agree. I consider that it is a great opportunity to get both money and skills.⁹⁹

To begin with, thanks to the part-time jobs students can obviously earn their own money. Being over eighteen, they often want to become independent from their parents as soon as possible, so it is a ^{good} chance. Not taking into consideration some everyday purchases, students can, for instance, buy a laptop for the studies or go on holiday to reduce stress. Furthermore, they can help their parents, especially if they are not wealthy.¹¹⁴

In addition, employers tend to hire the candidates with some working experience. These days there are more and more part-time jobs, which ~~are~~ let students practise in the same sphere as their future job⁵⁰ ^{will be.} Although still the most popular part-time jobs are from the service industry, they can still help with the employment in the future. Being a dog walker or a fast-food restaurant worker ^{develops} ~~gives~~ many crucial traits of character, such as patience, responsibility and determination. Such qualities are very needful in life ^{and} ~~and~~ for everyone, especially in case of applying for a well-paid job in an international company.⁵⁰

To sum up, I am convinced that the part-time jobs are very beneficial ~~sp~~ for high school students. They gain a lot of important skills and qualities. Besides, they earn some money, which they can spend on everyday things or even help their parents.

During the years of the COVID-19 pandemic, teachers and students experienced what it's like to learn online. Some students enjoyed learning remotely from their homes, others didn't, and everyone has different reasons why. But from my point of view, remote learning is worse than traditional in-person classroom learning.

To start it off, it's needed to say that remote learning isn't brand new. Some schools, colleges or universities can alternate between in-line and off-line learning; there are even some schools that are fully remote, but they cover a little percentage of all schools in our country. Sure, getting out of bed late and studying at home (your warm comfy room, with a cup of tea beside your desk) sounds very cool, but there are some reasons why you'll learn less. First is quite obvious: teachers need to create Zoom classes, share the link, accept students (and sometimes on Zoom trolls who ruin classes via sound effects or pranks) and do a bunch of other stuff, not related to teaching, so you'll learn less as you have less time. The second reason is quite easy to understand too: some students can fake being in the classroom - simply turning your camera and/or audio off can help you just sleep through the class or play games. The last reason is the lack of power that the teacher loses. Online, when teachers can only see your face through your webcam, it's easy to cheat on tests, chat in the middle of the class or do other things. On the other hand, going to school traditionally helps you focus on learning, and helps teachers provide more information in the span of 45 minutes.

As a conclusion I'd like to say that online learning isn't necessarily bad for everyone because people can be different. I recommend to think for yourself and decide, what suits you best.

It goes without saying that job experience is a crucial part of cultivating one's personality. It gives ~~you~~ an opportunity of meeting new interesting people, acquiring some necessary skills and learning to communicate with different people. I am ~~also~~ absolutely certain that high school students can benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes.

First of all, having a job means a salary that students get. It might be not a big amount of money but it will definitely contribute to the young people's being financially independent. Having some pocket money can also improve their self-esteem and make their parents recognize them. In this way, students can benefit from a part-time job because it influences fruitfully on their mental health, recognition, and independence. 121

Secondly, students that have a part-time job tend to be well-organised and reliable. They have to possess these traits of character as combining studying and career is impossible without them. Such students need to perform their job tasks successfully not ignoring their studying tasks. This experience makes young people multifunctional; it develops their time-management skills as well. It is also worth mentioning that such characteristics would be found appealing by ~~future~~ ^{their} future employers. They would also prefer to hire a worker ~~which~~ ^{who} has got a previous job experience. 86

In conclusion, I would like to emphasize the importance of gaining some job experience while studying at high school. It is extremely ~~important~~ ^{useful} 11.12.2021

There are many new technologies that have been integrated to our studying nowadays. Everybody uses laptops, phones and so on for educating themselves. What is interesting is that people often argue about remote learning through technologies. One considers that it is as effective as ^{as} traditional way of studying, others think that it is not beneficial. So, what do I think about this topic?

To my mind, remote learning is an important part of education. It can be seen that universities and colleges have already combined both methods. Students have one day per week when they study online. There might be unimportant subjects that can be learned remotely. Moreover, remote learning provides such opportunities as online desk where everybody can write, possibility to choose ~~and make~~ environment around you. It helps to make your studying easier and more comfortable. What is more, students and teachers can communicate normally because of cameras and other devices. 150

Nevertheless, there are still some problems in remote learning. Firstly, students can cheat on ^{an} exam easily. They just need other device and good acting as if they know everything. That is why I think that exams should be written in a classroom. Secondly, students might lie when it comes to internet connection and broken cameras. What is sad is that it is hard for teachers to check it. 67

I believe that remote learning through technologies ^{is} as effective as traditional classroom learning. Nonetheless, I think it is impossible to study only online. Traditional way and ^{new} way of learning should be ^{combined} ~~integrated~~. Now when we have a lot of effective ways and things for studying we should ~~use~~ use them all. 51

Nowadays, a lot of high school students have part-time jobs. Having a part-time job as a high school student is a common thing in many countries. Sadly, students have to spend all free time working in order to be able to pay for their education. In fact, it costs more than five thousand dollars a year to pay for college. Such a huge price for education leads students to work tirelessly. You may think that it is not very good for their physical and mental health. Actually, it is not true. I totally agree with the following statement: "High school students can benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes." 109

Personally, I used to work at KFC when I was a high school student. I used to be overweight for my whole life, but I found the job, I lost more than 50 pounds! Also I became more positive and friendly, which is a great benefit for me. Surprisingly, working at KFC helped me to get rid of insomnia. I got home as tired as a dog, so I slept like a baby.

my opinion

In conclusion ~~I would like to say that~~, having a part-time job while being a high school student is not one of the many options, but the only option for many students to get education. It is extremely sad. Still, having a part-time job while being a high school student brings you a lot of benefits such as money, life experience and so on. 110

In conclusion, I would like to say that it is essential for high school students to have part-time jobs in order to be able to pay for college or university to get some new knowledge, to obtain new skills and to make new friends. I would like to ~~recommend~~ give high school students a piece of advice: don't forget to study and rest while having a part-time job. It is extremely important for you not to forget about ~~this~~ this information in order to save your physical and mental health. 111

Modern technologies providing an opportunity of remote communications have become overwhelming popular in the recent years, especially due to coronavirus pandemic. Such services like Zoom or Skype helped us to solve a lot of problems in the job and education related areas. But here comes the question whether learning through this type of technologies can be equally effective compared to traditional classroom learning.

On the one hand, possibility of remote learning may be extremely helpful in many cases. Undoubtedly, this provides the opportunity to significantly expand range of students attending classes all over the world. For example, some of them live in remote rural areas and it is simply very hard or even impossible sometimes to them to go to school in person. Another good example is the online classes which are also very popular nowadays. Usually ~~these courses are~~ organizers of these courses don't have an appropriate place to give lessons in person and without online services it would be impossible. So, thus, education through modern technologies provides an opportunity of studying to millions of people worldwide.

On the other hand, some would say that this way of education can't be considered as effective as the traditional one. Indeed, there are some significant problems that can arise while studying online. The first and the most widespread one, it is the problem with Internet connection. Sometimes it may be really hard to provide and maintain a good connection between teacher and students, which has a strong impact on the educational process. Another potential problem is the lack of concentration among students studying remote. For teacher it also becomes much more complicated task to monitor students' work and make them pay attention. To conclude, I would like to say that there is no doubt that modern online services like Zoom have a tremendous potential and very helpful even now. However, the special thing to get more benefits while learning is the own desire of each student to study and get new knowledge. 151 ⁹⁵

Some politicians suggest ~~for~~ reconsidering the standard work week of 40 hours to 30 hours. Despite the fact that this populist suggestion might find a much support among people, this decision is not that beneficial as it seems and it needs to be ~~to~~ discussed.

I strongly believe that this decision might have a strong negative impact on any market economy. only market economy?

First of all, ~~the~~ reducing working hours of employees leads to companies getting less work done. That means that companies will try to compensate that by hiring new employees, and, therefore, reducing ~~the~~ salaries. why?

Newly hired workers will get a small salary too.

~~Although this~~ This fact means that the unemployment rate will ^{strongly} decrease. increase or decrease? why? It is commonly known that there always should be some unemployed people within the free ~~market~~ market. Also, smaller salaries mean that ordinary people will buy fewer products. A country's GDP will also decrease, ~~as~~ because of the profit of goods, as companies will produce less.

The overall picture shows us that an economy would be in a huge recession.

On the other hand, people will have more time for themselves, or at least it is thought to be. ~~Smaller~~

Smaller salaries mean that people will buy fewer products, that's why the quality of free time wouldn't be as ~~sets~~ satisfying as it was.

Secondly, we've got plenty examples of reducing working hours in history. Take a look at 1914, when the Russian provisional government decided to reduce working hours. This decision was popular, and the government was supported, but it caused a lot of trouble in the economy, considering the war. Anyway, the decision was cancelled, and soon the government fell.

the topic compares a 40 and 30 hour working week, not 48 (which is rather extreme).

So, all in all, this suggestion is made only by politicians who try to trick you, it is not beneficial. Those people who need more free time should consider ~~buying~~ ~~try~~ trying another work, or starting their own business. Doing something new is beneficial, as it gives people new emotions and experiences.

High school students can benefit from having part-time job while attending classes.

Nowadays, a lot of students want to earn money on their own in order to become more independent. However, this desire can dramatically affect their studying process. So, let's discuss whether high school students should be allowed to have part-time job or not.

On one hand, students should get the green light to work as it gives them valuable qualities and significant working experience. The thing is, while working in any place, students learn how to communicate with different people, how to cope with stress, how to use their time properly and etc. Furthermore, I believe that teenagers must try part-time job before applying to University. If they have various working experience, there will be no difficulty in deciding who they want to become in the future.

On the other hand, the always-busy stage of mind can ~~harm~~ damage students' mental health, therefore, studies in general. The students who are having part-time job are always constantly thinking about several things: how should they be on time at work, how to manage to do their homework, and how to pass the exams and all that jazz. As a student who always has this things in mind I feel sympathy for working students. So, the stress level which students revere from ~~the~~ earning money while studying is a significant aspect that prevent teenagers from working.

All in all, I guess that disadvantages are offset by advantages, so, students must work, if they have time. This experience will be useful in the future and will help them to become mature.

Deciding on a college major is a very important ^{step in children's life.} ~~decision~~. Occasionally, it ~~can be hard~~ ^{for} ~~children to do by~~ ^{themselves.} I agree with that it is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when making such a decision. And there are many reasons for that.

To begin with, children don't think too much before doing something. Consequently, this ~~may~~ ^{lead to} impulsive decisions, which as a result cause regrets, ~~and~~ ^{and resources}. Not to lose precious time ^{into consideration} deciding on a college major should be taken ^{very} seriously. Parents can help their child with this by suggesting and discussing various options.

Another reason is that parents are more realistic than children. Sometimes children are naive, they don't understand that life isn't simple. Parents can advise them, so their decisions on a college major ~~will be more~~ ^{will be more} beneficial in the future. For example, a child wants to ~~choose~~ ^{pick} an undemanded profession, which will result in some problems with money or employment in the future. In a situation like this, parents can propose ~~other professions~~ ^{to their child other professions}, making sure the child is satisfied with the proposal. Also, parents are more likely to support their child when they ~~think to see perspectives~~ ^{can find per-} ^{spectives} in that and when their opinion is taken into account.

In conclusion, parents play a crucial role in child's life and they can really help them when it comes to deciding on a college major. Children should seek for their guidance and ~~take~~ ^{pay} consideration to their opinion and advices.

The workweek standard of 40 hours, which is currently accepted, might not be really efficient indeed. There is an opinion that it should be reduced to 30 hours with which I would rather agree.

In order to support my opinion, I am going to give some arguments which seem fair enough to me. Firstly, the ~~work~~ reduced working hours will be beneficial for the employers because their employees will perform better and fulfil their duties more ^{efficiently} properly. They will have less time to complete all the tasks and, therefore, will try harder to succeed. Secondly, it is quite good for the workers. They will have more spare time for self-development. ~~and~~ ^{They} will be able not only to relax and get more energy but also to become more qualified and competitive.

On the other hand, ~~I can see~~ some drawbacks ~~can be seen~~ of such working system can be seen. Though the tasks will be completed properly, such reduction of working hours may result in rivalry ^{between} ~~among~~ the employees. Everyone will try to outperform the others with an eye to promotion. Supervisors will ~~be not~~ ^{not be} pleased with the workers, who failed to stick to the plan. The occurring rat race will cause a lot of stress to the workers, and jeopardise their ~~be~~ mental health. However, this problem can be avoid with proper managing and rewarding system. Some people also suggest that employees might find it hard to do without working during ten more hours. ~~Howev~~ Nevertheless, the ~~workers~~ most diligent workers can use this time to develop their skills to do their job even better.

To sum up, I would say that adopting a standard workweek of 30 hours will, unequivocally, benefit both employers and employess. All the disadvantages of such working hours ~~hours~~ reduction can be dealed with easily. Therefore, I consider it a ~~marve~~ good idea.

How much time should we all spend working?

There is no particular answer on the question, because ⁷ in the world there are many different thoughts and opinions. The statement I want to discuss says that the presently accepted standard workweek of 40 hours should be reconsidered and potentially reduced ³⁰ to 30 hours. In my opinion [✓] this idea has a point and I actually agree with the statement. Now I will try to convince you that at least we have to try to work less.

^g If to analyse some work that people do in a company, we will see, that ¹⁰⁰ a quality of some work done is not perfect even though employees had been working hard to ^g solve everything. Why does it happen? I suppose ^g everyone have heard of a work-life balance. It is not a secret that you have to develop yourself in other components of life as well. ¹⁵⁰ Of course [✓] you can work long hours and get a good salary, but it is so easy to lose your motivation and a sparkle in your eyes If to live according ^g to a tough graphic like this. So we all have to keep in mind, that our job is ²⁰⁰ not everything we have!

The best example of a good work-life balance is a ^g Swedish system called "Lagom". Lagom's priority is a balance in ~~every~~ everything: starting with your clothes, ending with your salary. People from Sweden are not trying to work hard, they work smart and that's the Key! We probably shouldn't always be in a rush, trying to earn as much as we can. Sometimes it is good to stop and think a bit more about your life balance in general. Reducing our working time can actually help us to analyse everything and then get the life better. lex

~~I mean~~ I believe that I can agree with the statement: "High school students can benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes". Nowadays there are a lot of people who want to get some money during their education at ^{high} school. It is not a bad tendency because students can achieve their goals and make their life better with the help of salary or wage.

Firstly, having part-time jobs while attending classes expands student's horizons. When you work, you can get new information or skills in some sphere. It's very useful because this way you can learn something new about the subject and it may help you to pass your exams with the flying colours.

Secondly, I should mention that during part-time jobs students can meet ^{with} new colleagues and interesting people. Some students nowadays have a problem with the idea of communication as they ~~can~~ ^{is} ~~specify~~ discuss something with others only via social media. While having part-time jobs, pupils can have a lot of communication with the colleagues. It can help a student to get new ~~skills~~ ^{language} skills.

Nowadays a lot of high school students are trying to simultaneously attend classes and ~~work~~ have a part-time job. Some people think that this combination is no good ~~because~~ while others encourage students to gain ~~working~~ experience as soon as they can.

On ^{the} one hand, part-time jobs can distract students from studying. This can cause a lack of knowledge needed to ~~get~~ enroll in universities and ~~getting~~ a high-paid job after completing your studies. ~~It is often not about~~ When it comes to applying to university, the requirements are usually based on academic excellence, not work experience. Therefore, in ^{the} a long run it can be more productive to ^{be} firstly become a specialist in some field and then start ~~earning~~ to earn money. ~~Because in this case, the salary will be bigger and the companies will want you to work to hire you and will offer you a big salary.~~

Reducing the standard workweek of 40 hours to just 30 is quite a controversial opinion. I have to say that I completely agree with it, although it does have its drawbacks. I would like to discuss further.

First of all, a reduction in working hours might do wonders as far as ⁵⁰ productivity is concerned. That would be the result of perception: who doesn't want to spend less time at work? It would incentivize workers to do more in less time. Then, it is something so unusual that it could attract ¹⁰⁰ more people to work in a particular company, mitigating the modern world's lack of educated specialists. Thirdly, it is of benefit to the company: less work days equals less money to spend on upkeep of offices. However, it might also prove to be counterproductive: in just the same way as productivity might increase, it could as well decrease. Moreover, people who are ¹⁵⁰ passionate about what they do for a living might not consider such a job offering. They might think that it would not let use their skills to the limit.

In conclusion, reducing the workweek from 40 to 30 hours ²⁰⁰ can have both good and bad consequences. I believe it is up to companies to analyze those consequences and ~~then~~ decide whether a reduction in working ~~hours~~ is a good fit for them.

Task 1. (1-5) Read the text and choose the correct option.

Transfer your answers onto the answer sheet.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous “tip” that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings’ grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

 - A. a school for gifted students.
 - ☒ B. a school with many wealthy students.

2. What is clear about the student who accused Elizabeth of cheating?
I - The student is a former friend of Elizabeth.

✓ III - The student is either lying or mistaken.

~~A. I only~~
~~B. I and II~~

~~B. A little girl wins the National Spelling Bee with hard work.~~
~~C. A man walks his dog during the rain.~~
D. A woman steps in front of a bus to make it to stop.

4. Why is Elizabeth so sure that she will learn who has accused her of cheating?

- A. Her friends will help her.
~~B. The community is so small.~~
C. She thinks the person will come forward.
D. She thinks the person will be the recipient of the Blauvelt Award.

5. The Blauvelt Award is important to Elizabeth because it will

Nowadays many teenagers are choosing a college to get education in. Many aspects are discussed before this serious and important decision. Obviously, parents of the students are involved in this process too. I believe that parents should not guide the choice of the student. To my mind one should rely on one's own thoughts and willings when deciding on a college major.

To begin with, parents can force the choice of the student without knowing the actual will of the pupil. This can lead to ~~about~~ useless education and studying for the profession of the parents' interest, but not the teenager's. Specialists, that don't actually choose their own career, usually end up being not satisfied with ~~the~~ their job and as a result their life.

What is more, parents can spoil their children's life, advising the career relevant to their time, but not the time of work and life of their children. Irrelevant information towards the required workers of professionals of some fields from parents can easily misguide a teenager. ~~It can also~~

All in all, I think that parents should not ^{guide} ~~from their~~ on a college choice of their kids. If can mislead the whole life.

One of the most challenging things in people's lives is choosing a college major. Making a right decision is really important because their further career and life will depend on it. ^{It is a widespread} ~~There is an opinion~~ opinion that children should seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major. I am going to comment on it and express my point of view.

As for me, children need to ask for advice because parents are more experienced. They can explain some difficulties and uncertainties of different majors and prevent quick decisions that may be made by their kids. ^{Moreover} ~~also~~, parents can tell their children about their own college majors. ^{Maybe} ~~Maybe~~ they will be interesting for adolescences and will become the main choice of them.

However, there are some downsides of discussing a college major with parents. For instance, they can try to persuade their children to choose a major that is more preferable for parents, not for children. That is awful because people should make their decisions themselves, especially such important ones as majority. Different opinions of parents and children may also lead to misunderstanding and quarrels.

It is not a secret that nowadays more and more students are ~~very~~ eager to ~~work~~ combine part-time jobs and attending classes. Personally, I agree that high school students can benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes.

First of all, I am convinced that jobs provides young people with wide experience that cannot be given during the study process. Moreover, students are able to develop a ~~large~~ huge variety of skills that can bring them success in the future. For example, communication skills, team-working, ^{knowledge} ~~knowing~~ how to relate ^{exp} with your employer and colleagues, etc. Actually, it is also a good way to ^{too} spend ~~your~~ free time. I believe that it is much better ^{for} when students ^{to} work after lessons than ^{to} go somewhere and throw a party, for example. Finally, students can make ~~some~~ some money and save it for a rainy day or for the future college or university.

On the other ¹⁵⁰ hand, there are many people who can disagree with my point of view and challenge it. It is said that part-time jobs only damage study process. Thus, people are convinced that students spend less time on their homework, that is why they cannot achieve the wanted results and ^{low} ~~low~~ notes ^{at} at the final exams, for example.

In conclusion, I am still totally convinced that students should have part-time jobs as it is extremely beneficial^{sp} for their present and the future.

The choice of a college major is the most significant event in every student's life.

lex Many programmes were implemented in a school curriculum to help pupils make their own decision considering their future career. Apart from school, there are adults whom most children consider their advisors and counsellors. Should children seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major.

There

There are many examples of students who are dissatisfied with their college studies because parents insisted on their opting for a certain ~~at~~ major which will provide with an opportunity to get a well-paid job. Teenagers have rebellious nature and it is not advisable to force them to do something. In my opinion, children should ~~not~~ turn to wise and elder counsellors, which are their parents, but not follow every word they say. It is up to a child which choice he or she will make. The example of Mikhail Lomonosov comes to one's mind while considering the issue of choosing one's path. He is a perfect model of a person who chose his own way and achieved immense success in every scientific field.

Some may argue that children ~~do not~~ do not have such a huge experience as their parents have. They say it is necessary for ~~students to ask~~ teenagers to ask for an advice, otherwise they will make a big mistake. However, ~~to have~~ in order to have experience children should make their own mistakes. Moreover, ^{most} parents give an advice according to their failure in the past. Due to this experience they want their children to ~~go to opt~~ for a major they felt dreams about their own teens or not to build air castles and go to a more decent university and choose a major which will give a well-paid job in the future.

To conclude, I would like to restate that children may turn to parents for a piece of advice but should not immediately obey it as it is up to them which college major they will opt for.

It is not a secret for anyone that some high school students have a part-time job while attending classes. Each one has ~~his~~^{their} own reason for that. For example, to save money for ~~college~~^{college}, to help parents or just to work earlier than in their twenties because they ~~don't~~^{sp} like studying. Of course, ~~the~~ money ~~are~~^{is} always good but are there any pros or cons in working while attending classes?

First of all, let's ~~sp~~^{sp} talk about education. Attending classes is very important because it's the main resource of knowledge. Of course, there are things like self-education, books and ~~into~~ the Internet but nothing will compare with good old school classes. It is also important to have a school diploma with good marks to have a chance to go to a good university. So it's better not to miss classes to earn some money. ~~140~~

On the other hand, there are some special ~~cases~~ cases of having a part-time job to earn money — money for future. For example, saving ~~them~~^{sp} to start an own business. This way having a part-time job ~~is not bad at all. But~~ instead of school is not bad at all. But it requires some special knowledge, an original idea for your project and a lot of skills. And let's not forget that business is not always profitable. That means that it is not guaranteed that you won't become a bankrupt.

To conclude, it is important to say that everybody chooses ~~his~~^{their} own path for life. If it's more important for you to have a more stable future, you ought to choose attending classes; if you like extreme or have your own reasons or ideas for your future, I ~~advise~~^{sp} you to ~~try~~ try having a part-time job. But, as for me, I choose attending classes.

READING (15 points)

Task 1. (1-5) Read the text and choose the correct option.

Transfer your answers onto the answer sheet.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous “tip” that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings’ grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

 - A. a school for gifted students.

III - The student is either lying or mistaken.

A. I only

B. I and II

☒ C. II and III

A. A dog chases a cat up a tree.

B. A little girl wins the National Spelling Bee with hard work.

C. A man walks his dog during the rain.

☒ D. A woman steps in front of a bus to make it to stop.

4. Why is Elizabeth so sure that she will learn who has accused her of cheating?

A. Her friends will help her.

☒ B. The community is so small.

C. She thinks the person will come forward.

D. She thinks the person will be the recipient of the Blauvelt Award.

5. The Blauvelt Award is important to Elizabeth because it will

Nowadays, almost all adults have a full-time job that requires to work five days a week and 8 hours a day. And it is acceptable for some people. However, I think that the standard workweek of 40 hours should be reconsidered and potentially reduced to 30 hours.

There are a lot of reasons why the government should change the working hours. One of them is that people who spend too much time at work become very stressful and nervous. They are not able to get enough rest and do some leisure activities to calm down after a hard-working day. Moreover, sometimes they just do not find time to do basic things such as cooking or shopping. Besides, parents also suffer from a busy schedule of 40 hours working a week. The main care of parents is to grow their children who need a lot of attention. Taking care of children is extremely hard work that requires not less time than their official jobs. And if the parents spend all their time working, they cannot pay enough attention to their family. And if kids grow up without parental love and support, they become unconfident in their future. They also do not learn values of having a family, so they won't have a need of having kids when they get older. ~~The situation turns the~~ It has a negative impact on the demography situation in the world.

In conclusion, I would say that to prevent all these things from happening, people should have less working hours. Only then ~~we will have~~ our society will prosper and we will have a healthy ^{developing} community. ~~that~~

Nowadays a lot of technologies appear ~~every day~~ ^{from} every day, they can be very useful in science, but also these ¹⁰⁰ ~~inventions~~ ¹⁰⁰ can have ⁹⁵ harmful impact on modern teenagers, because ¹⁰⁰ adolescence can become addicted ⁹⁵ from ⁹⁵ social networks, chatting with their friends, computer games and the Internet in general. Also, a lot of online schools open when the Internet developed to this level. The process of education ~~becomes easy~~ became easier for many students because they can find almost all information that they need in Google, Safari and other searching technologies. ⁸⁵

To begin with, I believe that it is not honest to compare remote learning through technologies like Zoom and traditional in-person classroom learning, because the second point is much more useful for student than the first, so, in my opinion, ~~this stat~~ that statement "Remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom ~~learning~~ learning" is not ~~true~~ ¹⁰⁰ truth for me and I can prove it. ⁶²

Teachers that work in ~~real~~ ⁹⁵ real life have close connection with students, they try to explain everything clearly, while studying with ⁹⁵ person in ⁹⁵ computer can't prevent from cheating. In my opinion, education with ⁹⁵ real teacher is much more effective because information comes to ⁹⁵ ~~us~~ ^{pupil} in more ⁹⁵ useful way because our parents, grandparents and other generations studied in that way. Also, if we talk about the subject of education, ⁹⁵ person can not pay all his attention to learning while he ⁹⁵ sit ⁹⁵ near his computer, because there are too ⁹⁵ much things in computer and at home that ¹⁰⁰ distract the student from educational process. Also, if you spend a lot of time, studying online, it will have ¹⁰⁰ bad impact.

Nowadays more and more educational organisations tend to provide for ^a remote learning via various online platforms or conferences. At first ^{sp. exp.} ~~site~~, it seems to be quite beneficial for both ~~its students~~ sides and ^{exp. be} ~~sooner~~ completely equal to the traditional in-person classroom learning. Nonetheless, most people do not look ahead the consequences of such a change. In my opinion, remote learning through technologies cannot be as effective as a customary classroom learning. I disagree with the statement.

Now I would like to support my positions with some reasons. First of all, remote learning does not enable children or ~~teens~~ teenagers to communicate face-to-face. The value of such a process is ^{do not} ~~is~~ pivotal for their social skills development. Even online meetings ~~cannot~~ ^{do not} guarantee the students for giving ~~mean~~ ^{with} opportunity of expressing all emotions and feelings ^{that} they can share talking to each other closely. ~~Moreover, any messengers also deteriorate~~ Secondly, ~~online learning~~ during an online lesson a student ¹⁵⁰ can just do nothing instead of ^{help} ~~teaching~~. He or she can easily find ~~answers~~ ^{keys} for tests, ~~teachers' questions~~ or answers for ^{to} teachers' questions on the Internet. Such a student may have ~~outstanding~~ marks without ~~gaining~~ useful and critical knowledge. Afterwards such a case may bring on a decrease in a level of IQ ¹⁵⁰ not only in one country, but in the whole world. Thirdly, not all families have ~~enough~~ an opportunity of having enough money to pay for their children's education. Schools providing remote learning are known to require a great deal of money for the whole period of studying.

In conclusion, I want to notice that the traditional way of learning cannot be replaced with a remote one. The former kind has more advantages and positive outcomes.

Humans can never be truly satisfied. Even if one has everything the world has to offer, they will strive for more. This is basic human nature. However, it does not mean ^{one} should fight this principle. The constant will to get more from life is what has driven us to develop our culture all these years.

Following this line of logic ^{hex} might be able to get someone motivated. ^{hex} The may set one grand goal and push towards ~~its~~ its completion for the rest of their life. One may aim for usual things, such as fame, money, and control, while someone else may persist to finish something ambitious, larger than anyone could imagine - the range of possibilities is astonishing.

But how can one start ^{on} completing such challenging projects since high school? The answer to that is having a part-time job while attending classes. Generally, ¹⁰⁰ ~~pea~~ people take such vacancies to earn some money, spend it on something they want or need, and then simply leave them. However, I believe that ¹⁵⁰ these jobs are something much, much bigger. With them, a common high-schooler may already start to strive for the goal of their life by saving up money and gaining experience.

Say, if your goal was to help scientists build a spaceship that would finally get humans to land on Mars, wouldn't a ²⁰⁰ ~~part~~ part-time job related to programming help you achieve it? You would be able to start ²⁵⁰ ~~low~~ earlier and get money that you might need on your journey, too.

Of course, one might say that finding such a suitable part-time job might be unlikely, and that it may interfere with studying. ³⁰⁰ And while that is true, it is ⁶² worth it to try and balance your timetable and get that job for some needed money.

That is why high-schoolers can benefit from having ³⁵⁰ ~~part-time~~ part-time jobs while studying.

In my opinion, high school students can benefit greatly from having a part-time job while attending classes. And there are a ~~couple~~ few reasons why. 24

Firstly, it will give students the opportunity to start earning their own money, which in turn they can use to pay off of any student debt they have. They will also learn how to handle money, save it, invest it, etc.

Secondly, it will give them a taste of adult life. They will learn how it feels to get their first paycheck, be late for work, make a mistake, maybe even get fired! All this will prepare them for the hard work that is having a job.

Also, it's ^{up} a great way to ~~or~~ explore the ~~field~~ of work one ~~is~~ plans to enter in the future. For example, a student wanting to become a marine biologist can get a job at the aquarium, where he or she can get to see real marine creatures and professionals working with them, ~~up close~~.

And Finally, it's ^{Sp} a great way ^{Sp} to ~~make~~ to make friends. A part-time job entails tasks that aren't all that exiting, meaning it's a perfect place to start small talk. Who knows, maybe one will find a future business partner or best friend.

But, it's also important to remember about one's studies. Having a part-time job takes time and can be distracting, meaning it's not for everyone.

To conclude, having a part-time job as a student is a great way to make money, get a feel for adult life, to explore one's desired field and make friends. Nevertheless, it's ^{very} important to remember that a part-time job takes time, and one has to ^{vital} figure out if he has that time and energy to pursue it. So

It is a widely-known fact that usually workweek lasts for 40 hours, 8 hours a day. However, nowadays an idea to reduce an amount of working hours has arisen. To my mind, it is not necessary and can cause be even harmful for the Russian economy.

Firstly, industry, service sector and public sector are working with consideration that everyone works 8 hours per day. Such a fast step can seriously disrupt supply chains, which can cause horrific consequences. For example, empty shops and extremely high prices for any commodity. Another important aspect to think about is that who is going to pay for two hours each day. Decreasing of salary is unacceptable, but in this case an amount of produced goods and services must be equal to the one amount of production per shortened day. Actually, this is impossible because it will lead to a long-last crisis.

Secondly, such an idea has already been discussed in the Russian parliament. That time it was offered to reduce a workweek to 4 working days. This project was cancelled. Currently, there is a high level of inflation in Russia, and therefore, such important steps won't be taken right now. Russia also doesn't have necessary experience and resources to contain possible damage. There is also further more, there is a quite large percent of the shadow economy. How is it going to be regulated? Yet, there is no answer.

In conclusion, I think that a reformation of that kind will bring only negatives in Russian economy and life of citizens. The consequences that cannot be prognosed.

Numerous schools had to teach students remotely due to Coronavirus lock-down in 2020. This way of education can seem contradictory. Can remote learning through technologies like Zoom be ~~equally~~^{as} effective as classroom learning?

First of all, the ~~academic~~^{academic} performance remains same regardless of the students' environment. It ^{even} might be better because of much more convenient stress-free space, their own rooms. A great example of school with effective remote education is the "CPM" school located in Moscow, Russia. ~~Then~~ Hundreds of teenagers enroll it yearly. Moreover, ~~a part of them that~~ ^{a part of them that} ~~need not move to Moscow to get education there.~~ Moreover, a part of them that live far from Moscow need not move. The school provides them with high-level remote education. A tremendous number of "CPM" ~~graduated~~^{graduated} ~~stud~~ pupils graduated from the "CPM" gets the highest scores for graduation exams and olympiads. Consequently, the quality of education does not deteriorate even if it is provided remotely.

Secondly, remote learning can be more engaging because of a vast ~~range~~^{range} of educational platforms that teachers can use during online lesson. For instance, teachers from my school used not only Zoom but also Miro and Edvibe platform. These technologies transformed dull lessons into, interactive and informative games. My ^{simultaneously} classmates and I better understood new material ~~as~~ that we learnt during these online lessons. As a result, remote learning captivates more students by its interactivity.

To conclude, I totally agree with the statement that remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning.

I think that it is a good idea to discuss your choise of a college major with your parents. I hold this position for a number of diffirent reasons.

Firstly, you should not discount your parents' wisdom. Their life experience may be diffirent from the one you have, but they were once faced with the same issue of deciding on a career path. If your parents succeded thanks to this choise, then they certainly have something worthwhile to say on this subject. Secondly, your parents only want what is good for you. They will definitely empathize with your struggle. Additionally, asking somebody for advice can reveal a diffirent perspective, give an unbiased ~~view~~ view on your strengths and weaknesses. Deciding on a college major is a big task, so evaluating the opinions of others might make it a lot easier.

Some would be put off by the idea of having such an impactful descision be made for them. However, this is not what it is about. You should not take anyone's words as gospel and you are allowed to have a disagreement. After all, it is through disagreement that healthy discussion is created. If the conversation remains civil, a lot of things will become much clearer all by themselves. Those who are distrustful of their parents' judgement should still give the argument on college ~~majors~~ majors a try. Even if no common ground can be found, your parents are likely going to encourage you to follow your heart regardless.

In conclusion, seeking guidance from parents when deciding on a college major is a good idea. It is almost certain to help children make the correct descision.

It is a well-known fact that choosing a college major is ~~really~~ not ~~important~~ only important, but also sometimes ~~hard~~ difficult. That is why it is a great idea to ~~or~~ seek help from parents when ~~choos~~ making a decision that influences one's future career.

First of all, parents know their children really well. Moreover, ~~they are~~ They know the personality traits that their ~~child~~ offspring possess, so they ~~can~~ are able to ~~offer~~ assess whether or not a college major is the right fit for their children. Moreover, parents ~~are~~ are well-informed about the current trends of the job market, so their guidance might help ~~a child~~ children select a promising field that offers copious opportunities to grow ^{both} as professional and as a person.

Secondly, parents are great as advisors since they ~~obtain~~ are generally more experienced than their children. For example, they ~~might~~ are ~~adri~~ knowledgeable when it comes to ~~prioritising~~ sorting out career paths, so with their help children are able to sift through numerous majors way faster, the process becoming more fruitful.

It is crucial to keep in mind that seeking guidance from one's parents might have its drawbacks, too. In fact, some parents might be willing to help their kid with choosing a field of study so much that they ~~child with~~ resort to ~~pressing~~ putting the ~~child~~ ^{kid} under pressure. Clearly, parents ~~may~~ love their ~~ch~~ kids and ~~it~~ firmly believe that ~~what~~ they ~~know~~ "know better" when it comes to selecting a college major, but that's not always the case.

After all, it is always up to children to decide whether they are in need of advice. I believe that seeking guidance from parents is really helpful when choosing a field of study.

Remote learning is a great way to continue education if there is a certain reason which prevents you from studying in-person. (Being handicapped, for example). But in my opinion learning through technologies ^{sp} won't really thrive in the future because the process of getting knowledge itself is a lot less effective comparing to doing it in a traditional way.

~~For~~ First of all, many of us have experienced the online-learning through the Covid-19 Pandemic, and personally I ^{sp} can't call that time the best of my school life. When you visit the education facilities your life becomes a lot more structured: the tasks are given ¹⁰⁰ in order, you know exactly where to find the needed information and when is it appropriate to ask a teacher for help. Learning through zoom and other apps can be appealing due to the ~~lack~~ ^{of} hustle in the morning and the need to dress in uniform, but staying ^{sp} in home makes you plan everything you have to do all by yourself, which can be extremely hard if you've ^{sp} never planned your way of living before. And secondly, ~~the~~ studying through computer can lead to ~~the~~ a feeling of being deprived of the world. By this statement I mean that you ~~lose~~ true connections ^{sp} to people: you text instead of talking on the breaks, you don't ^{sp} have someone to walk to school or university with - so you just stop your social life and become lonely, ~~left~~ ~~and~~ and broken, desperate 129 229 words

High school is a bright ^{and colourful} ^{life} period of students. It also includes its own difficulties like exams. Despite of numerous ^{life} situations, jobs, and reasons why students go to work, I am sure that students cannot benefit from it. I want to prove my opinion by ^{while attending classes} two arguments. Firstly, students after school and job will be tired. They won't have their own times and time for rest. They will be exhausted after a month. ^{It causes} mental and healthy ^{problems}. They stop chilling with their friends. They also won't have time to find themselves and their hobby.

Secondly, students' mark will be probably worse because they also won't have time to study and prepare for the final exams. I know one girl, Mary, she working while attending classes. At the end of the year she ^{decided to} take a gap year because she failed her exams. ^{Nevertheless, education is} ^{really} important. I think education is the key to the good ^{right} life.

To sum up, there is no big benefit from working during the year. I guess students should work at summer if they want. Anyway it's a personal choice for everyone. Maybe, if ^{sp} students are working a teaching or ^{sp} ~~earn~~ earning by being a trainer it's a good way to find themselves and develop in this duration. And, of course, if they correctly ^{sp} ^{and manage} define the time they also can benefit from it. I hope my position is clear. That's all that I wanted to say. Remember education is the most important thing in students' lives! It's a way to think clear and be an intelligent ^{and} ^{brave} interesting person! It's way to have more opportunities!

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous “tip” that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings’ grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

1. Seagrove Academy was
 - A. a school for gifted students.
 - B. a school with many wealthy students.
 - C. a school where many kids lied and cheated.
 - D. a large school where it was hard to get to know people.
2. What is clear about the student who accused Elizabeth of cheating?
 - I - The student is a former friend of Elizabeth.
 - II - The student does not want anyone to know who he or she is.
 - III - The student is either lying or mistaken.

- A. I only
 - B. I and II
 - C. II and III
 - D. I, II, and III
3. Which of the following is best described as brazen?
- A. A dog chases a cat up a tree.
 - B. A little girl wins the National Spelling Bee with hard work.
 - C. A man walks his dog during the rain.
 - D. A woman steps in front of a bus to make it to stop.
4. Why is Elizabeth so sure that she will learn who has accused her of cheating?
- A. Her friends will help her.
 - B. The community is so small.
 - C. She thinks the person will come forward.
 - D. She thinks the person will be the recipient of the Blauvelt Award.
5. The Blauvelt Award is important to Elizabeth because it will
- A. prove she is intelligent.

Nowadays teenagers tend to be interested in getting a high-quality education. The choice of their college major influences their future career a lot, that's why this decision is of great importance for the adolescents.

There are two opinions on this issue discussed most: some people believe that children should choose their college major on their own while others recommend them to seek guidance from their parents.

In my opinion, the best way to solve this problem is to mix these ~~to~~^{two} opinions together. Teenagers should listen to their heart and decide what they want to do in the future, but still it would be nice to discuss such choice with their parents. Sometimes they can look at the situation with fresh sight and help their children by giving some useful advice.

I would like to give some examples to prove my point of view. The famous heroine of Charlotte Brönte - Jane Eyre, became an orphan too early and she lacked the parents' advice. Her aunt didn't care about her at all, so she had to live on her own and rely only on herself. ~~She~~ Jane struggled a lot without any help and support, but still she could overcome all her problems and difficulties and become happy. I personally know one ~~a~~ living example of choosing a career path. My friend's mom insisted on her to get a medical education after leaving school, but my friend Julia didn't want to. She has always loved animals really much and wanted to dedicate her life to helping and curing them. ~~She is~~ Julia is graduating college as a vet this year and she is really happy to get the education she had chosen herself.

Both of these examples highlight the topic and illustrate my main idea: even if sometimes we need an advice from our parents, the best decision in the end is the one made by ourselves. I firmly believe that children should follow their dreams when choosing a career path or a college major.

Nowadays our ~~modern~~ society develops mostly because of technologies, for instance, medicine, travelling, education, etc. There is a discussion ^{about remote learning} between people of all ages.

Some of them truly believe that it is equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning, in contrast, others disagree. In my opinion, online learning through technologies like Zoom ~~can not be equally effective~~ and ~~offline~~ studying offline can not be equally effective. Now I am going to present some ^{with what} compelling reasons in supporting my position ^{highly}.

Firstly, ¹⁰⁰ time and ~~the~~ dates of lessons depend ^{on} the Internet connection, which is why some of them can be canceled. ~~Therefore~~ It is quite a serious problem, ^{when you learn online} because if a student did not understand the theme in time, they would probably not get into the next ones. Secondly, ~~when the student has the opportunity to talk face to face to their professor teacher~~ Secondly, traditional in-person classroom learning allows students ¹⁵⁰ talk face to face to their teachers at any time ²⁰ ask a lot of questions ¹⁵⁰ to understand things more clearly immediately, whereas ²⁰ remote learning does not provide such opportunity. In addition, it is crucial for productive learning to complete ^{some of} the assignments with the classmates in groups to get new soft skills and stay motivated. To tell the truth, it is much easier ²⁰⁰ to organise such activities offline in a classroom.

In conclusion, I would like to point out that in our modern world there ^{is} ~~are~~ vast amount of ways to educate yourself and become smarter, therefore all people can choose what is best for them: online or offline learning. ²⁵⁰

Nowadays, many students try to find a good part-time job after the graduation or even during high school years. Personally, I ^{am} totally agree with the statement that ^{job} is more beneficial for young people than not.

Moreover, I can support this idea with some examples. First of all, ^a new job broaden^s people's horizons and push^s their brain to their limits. Studying new skills may be hard at first but then it will help students to improve their adult life. Secondly, while working at the part-time job you get to know many new people and expand your social abilities. Thirdly, you relax if you do the job that you really like. Finally, having part time jobs makes you financially independent from your parents that extremely important for teenagers nowadays. 129

Though, I understand that some people may disagree with that statement. Part-time jobs require a lot of time and energy that many of students ^{so} won't have while their high-school life. Moreover, many young people may be distracted from their studies because of the part-time job. Some of the students may have a depression due to stress on ~~work~~ work and at school.

However, I still think that having ^{of} part-time job in high school is worth it. With special time management and a little bit of perseverance students can easily overcome these challenges. After all, ^{some} experience and social connections you can get ~~only~~ only after having part-time jobs in high school. 100

I totally agree with this statement. Nowadays, learning through modern technologies with using Internet is becoming more and more popular and useful. This way of studying can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person learning. 36

Firstly, studying online is more comfortable than in-person learning. You can learn new information absolutely everywhere. You do not need to go to some special buildings and study there. You can just open your laptop or your phone and study at home or somewhere else.

Secondly, when you learn something online with the tutor, you can easily ask him about any topic whenever you want. You can just send your tutor text or voice messages and he will answer you as soon as he can. My ^{English} tutor usually answers me in 20 minutes. But when you study offline, you can't do this. 100

Thirdly, online studying can be cheaper than traditional offline learning. For example, in my native city, I need to pay 1500 rubles for one in-person lesson with my Math tutor. So, it is 12000 rubles per month. But studying online school costs from 3000 to 7000 rubles per month which is absolutely cheaper than studying with my tutor.

But traditional learning also has some advantages. Some people can't understand new information from videos, so they should study offline. Also, people, who live in villages or small towns may not have stable Internet connection. So, learning online, through modern technologies is not their cup of tea. 102

In conclusion, learning online and in-person are absolutely possible ways of studying. But I think, that online studying with using Internet services, such as Zoom, Skype or ~~Telegram~~ Telegram, is the best variant nowadays. 23

There is no doubt that choosing a college is the most complicated stage of life after a graduation. Many of us are still indecisive at that age and ~~we~~ need someone to ~~look up to~~ help. I am inclined to believe that ~~our~~ parents should give ~~us~~ ideas of our future careers. Therefore, we might find something that ~~will~~ suits us.

To start with, I ~~become~~^{reach} that older people ~~have~~^{an efficient} more experience and they know ~~fields~~ how to choose ~~right~~ career that will be in demand. For example, my sister did not know where to go after school. My parents suggested "Design Academy" as she ~~has~~ always been into fine arts. After the graduation from the college, she became a successful architect. It shows that ~~parents~~ relatives may be really helpful in choosing colledge. Moreover, I ~~assume~~ that our ~~mom~~ and dad ~~that~~ have been raising us for many years ~~and~~ know our preferences programm correctly. ~~and may~~ It will not let them to pick a wrong bachelor for us. For instance, my father ~~went to~~ ~~ever~~ was interested in business since ~~the~~ middle school. Therefore, his mother advised him to study economics. Now he is a prominent entrepreneur, that has ~~three~~^{flourishing} businesses at the same time.

On the contrary, some people consider that this choice stems only from themselves. I strongly disagree with that statement. We are not mature enough to make serious decision on our own.

To conclude, I tend to believe that it is very advisable ~~for~~ to immerse our parents in choosing a college. They are wiser and may lead us to a right decision that will ~~give~~^{open} us new opportunities in the future.

Task 1. (1-5) Read the text and choose the correct option.

Transfer your answers onto the answer sheet.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous “tip” that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings’ grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

1. Seagrove Academy was

- A. a school for gifted students.
- ☒ B. a school with many wealthy students.
- C. a school where many kids lied and cheated.
- D. a large school where it was hard to get to know people.

2. What is clear about the student who accused Elizabeth of cheating?

- I - The student is a former friend of Elizabeth.

II - The student does not want anyone to know who he or she is.

III - The student is either lying or mistaken.

- A. I only
- B. I and II
- ☒ C. II and III
- D. I, II, and III

3. Which of the following is best described as brazen?

- ☒ A. A dog chases a cat up a tree.
- B. A little girl wins the National Spelling Bee with hard work.
- C. A man walks his dog during the rain.
- ☒ D. A woman steps in front of a bus to make it to stop.

4. Why is Elizabeth so sure that she will learn who has accused her of cheating?

- A. Her friends will help her.
- ☒ B. The community is so small.
- C. She thinks the person will come forward.
- D. She thinks the person will be the recipient of the Blauvelt Award.

5. The Blauvelt Award is important to Elizabeth because it will

Topic №1

It is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major.

The thought-provoking statement encapsulates the strong bonds of children and their parents, guiding their "offsprings" in a college major. Personally, I agree with the statement and in this essay I am going to give my thoughts.

There are many opinions in the world about adolescents independence. Moreover, it's believed that contemporary teenagers have to earn money on their own and pursue their educational prowess, beginning from the childhood. I don't really approve it and I strongly believe that the future success of a child is connected with benevolent parents' advice having given in time. The consultation with parents ^{about college} is not the precise teenagers' blueprint for the future but it is a great boost to their own one.

However, the generation gap ~~my~~ may cause some misunderstandings. In this case, teenager, in my opinion, have to make himself to talk with his parents and prove that in the college he had picked the results would be astounding ~~or~~ ~~man~~. Maybe teenager can even ~~for~~ show to his parents that he has made something decent with flying colours, so it could ~~work~~ help to improve the relationship.

In conclusion, I would like to emphasize the fact that asking ^{some} advice from parents is crucial for getting success. ~~that is why I believe that seeking guidance is advisable for children.~~

It goes without saying that educational technologies are becoming increasingly vital part of our everyday life. Technologies made it possible for pupils not to waste time in libraries looking up their dictionaries, use virtual intelligent ^{voice} and even attend online classes. However, progress always brings about discussions about the acceptance and efficiency of its products and education is not an exception. So, there are a lot of arguments about the ability of learning technologies take room ~~to~~ ^{to} replace traditional in-person teaching. My essay aims to clear this issue and ~~express~~ ^{usage} my opinion.

Personally, I am apt to modern educational appliances. The first thing to mention is that ^{obvious} convenience of its ~~usage~~ ^{for} ~~for~~ these students who live in big cities or remote villages. The fact is, neither pupils nor teachers should spend hours in traffic jams heading for the lessons. Nowadays it's possible to ~~attend~~ ^{from home} online conference which saves a lot of time and energy. ⁸⁵

Besondy, such programmes as Zoom has already introduced all the necessary appliances. For example, there are such functions as screen demonstration and presentations and other visual materials in Zoom. They say that drawback of internet ~~cont~~ ^{access} video-meeting is the ability ~~to~~ ^{to} Internet which allows pupils to ~~cheat~~ ^{sp} on tests. Honestly, I don't ~~consider it as the~~ ^{sp} think that it's ^{sp} a detrimental problem. ~~nowadays~~

As ~~far~~ ^{as} I know there're ~~a lot of~~ ^{some} programmes which block the Internet access ~~while~~ ^{some} during the tests. They ~~can~~ ^{can} help to prevent those who wants to ~~slack and cheat~~. Frankly speaking, even in traditional ~~school~~ ^{sp} there are those who want to slack and cheat. ⁸⁵

To conclude, I ~~don't~~ ^{like} to emphasise the ability of technologies to replace in-person traditional tuition. ~~It goes without saying~~ ^{sp} Certainly, they are quite different but, by and large, the main purpose of studies is ~~to~~ ^{to} obtain notion, critical thinking and profound knowledge by all means. ~~At the end of the day~~ ^{sp} As for me, all is good in moderation. ¹⁴⁸ writing, Topic №1.

Education is an essential part of everyone's life. At first, it all starts with just a school, where usually not a lot of decisions have to be made. This changes with ending the school: now a person is presented with thousands upon thousands of options. Most of teenagers agree that question regarding the college major is the most important one at this period of life, and that it's crucial to ask someone for a piece of advice.

A lot of future students seek guidance from their own parents. It might ¹⁰⁰ be not the worst option, but ~~definit~~ not the best one either, in my opinion. However, let's look at the advantages first. Usually parents understand their child, the child's dreams, talants, character and other aspects. Sometimes parents can know more about their offspring then the kid themselves ¹⁵⁰. Due to it, an advice from people, who brought you up, may be surprisingly ²⁰⁰ useful. Moreover, parents already have an experience of enrolling to a college and studying there. They can recommend their child to go to the same college if their impression from it was great. And last but not least, ²⁰⁰ being an adult, a parent has friends or colleagues that ~~has~~ used to study in different facilities. A word from ~~the~~ ^{an} acquaintance is absolutely going ²⁵⁰ to be important.

²⁵⁰ ~~However~~, ^{Despite all of the above} an average parent or adult in general do not have the needed amount of knowledge about jobs and college majors. Everything could have changed after ~~the~~ parent's graduation from college, so their advice may be worth nothing at all! There is also no garantee that adults know about the kid's dream ~~profesion~~ profession: it might be a brand new or a niche job not a lot of people are in the know about.

Children have right to seek guidance from anyone the want, including their parents. Still, I believe that asking a professional advisor or consultant is much better.

Once ^{was} are the days when learning could be offline only. Now there is a huge variety of ways to study. The most popular one is a remote learning through technologies like Zoom. I suppose that this kind of studying is equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. I am going to give you the most compelling reasons for agreeing with this statement below.

Firstly, a high-speed Internet ^{and modern technologies} can compensate for the loss of opportunity to see each other in a real life. ~~Now~~ You can use special functions so that attendees of meetings ^{can} see and hear you. For example, Zoom, Teams and another similar apps offer you to turn your mic and camera on. ^{It}

Secondly, there is a lot of other useful functions that can help you to do without ordinary black ^{sp}boards. For instance, Zoom lets you share your screen and use a lot of apps simultaneously. ^{It}

Moreover, there is a possibility to send messages ^{can be found}. This function lets you share files and other materials for learning.

Nowadays you have a plenty of ways to study. Online learning can save you if you can't attend classroom classes or you are taking up ~~an~~ online classes that are held on the other part of the world. ^{Even as it} ~~turns out~~ ^{more} this way of studying is equally effective compared to traditional in-person learning. ^{It}

Some of people claim that work duration of 40 hours per week should be shortened to the level of 30 hours, while others do not approve of such suggestion. As for me, I encourage that workweek of 40 hours should be cut.

First of all, current standart workweek makes people feel ill and depressed. There is the growing number of cases when people who work hard for a long time start suffering from different deseases or feel themselves under the weather. For instance, numerous ~~st~~ studies and global experience have shown that employees who worked for more than 35 hours per week are supposed to have mentall illnesses and heart deseases. This situation results in people trying to find a job without stable workweek.

Moreover, ~~this~~ question of shortape the ~~current~~ standard workweek ~~sto~~ has been the subject of much debates where a lot of people opted for that workweek should be shortened. There is another reason for such behaviour. A lot of scientific works have shown that the most effective individual's cognitive ~~activity~~ abilities had seen in the first three hours of work. Effectiveness is crucial for achieving great results. If people worked more effectively, they would get better fruits of their labour.

As with most scientific issues, this question should also be viewed from a different perspective. Most of the employers are still against the shortage of the worweek and there are still employees who need to work harder. One possible solution for this problem is the invention of a personal work hours for every employee.

In conclusion, I would like to reiterate that current standard workweek of 40 hours should be shortened in order to prevent the increasing in the number of people suffering from mentall illnesses, heart deseases and depression. It is crucial to take steps to invent personal work hours for everyone!

Undoubtedly, online learning is becoming an essential part of our life. Technologies are everywhere; in our houses, in stores, in the subway. Distant learning through ~~tech~~ technologies is quite popular nowadays.

I think that online learning is more effective than traditional in-person classroom learning. First of all, students can study at home ~~in~~ with a calm atmosphere. It is really comfortable to sit on the sofa in the living-room, drink a cup of coffee and study. I believe this is more effective than go to school and sit ~~on~~ on a chair in the classroom with lots of other people. It can be a big stress for many students. Secondly, students ~~don't~~ st need to get up early and to waste time on going to school. They can read their notes and prepare for the lesson instead of it. 123

I would like to share with ~~you~~ ^{you} my experience of distant learning. I ~~am preparing~~ have been preparing for my Ege exam for five months and I have used Zoom to study with my tutor. It is very convenient for both of us. Every lesson is exciting and interesting. My ~~st~~ tutor sends me online homework, which I really like doing. 58

Nevertheless, there are disadvantages of remote learning. Not all students have appropriate equipment for learning. For example, their microphone ~~may~~ ^{can} be broken. Besides, some students don't have self-discipline and they can play on their phones during the lesson.

To sum up, I strongly believe that online-learning provides new skills for people and expands their knowledge. I think that many students will use distant learning in the future. 68

Nowadays online learning through systems such as Zoom is becoming more and more popular. This is happening due to the development of digital technologies. Many people consider remote studying to be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. Personally, I disagree with this point of view. I am going to share my thoughts on the subject and support my opinion. 62

I think that the disadvantages of online learning definitely outweigh its advantages. Of course, studying remotely is sometimes more convenient for people who spend a lot of time on commuting. It also reduces students' stress levels as they do not have to interact with others face to face. But on the other hand, there are many downsides. For example, some people may have poor Internet connection and thus lose the ability to study at all. Another problem is the lack of communication with other classmates which can be specifically traumatising for children who must communicate to socialize. But the biggest disadvantage, in my opinion, is reduced concentration. When people study at home, they always get distracted by all sorts of things: family, pets, chores etc. Remote learning just doesn't provide the atmosphere that would inspire someone to pursue studying. In class, for instance, one has a teacher that motivates the student and encourages his further learning. That is the most important difference between online learning and traditional learning. 169

To sum up, I am certain that online studying does not even come close to traditional studying when it comes to efficiency. Despite its upsides, it is just too "relaxed" to provide good results. 24

Nowadays more and more students all over the world take part in lessons with using technologies like Zoom. We can remember the epidemic situation in 2020 when the most of children ~~or~~ ^{and} youth had to use technologies for learning. I mulled ^{voc} that situation over and ~~desi~~ ^{decided} ~~decided~~ that for me it was the most convenient ^{sp} type of learning. And I'd ^{sp} like to name the reasons. 64

Firstly, students are free from waisting their leasure time on reaching the place. And this ^{of 1 of the lesson} aforementioned ~~pro~~ advantage can save children's time for learning ~~which~~ which is very important in a high school before the exams.

Secondly, students can afford themselves teachers all over the world. Also they can practise speaking ^{skills} and soft-skills with a native speaker. It can cause raising of english ^{knowledge} level of ~~knowledge~~ of a student. 70

I ~~now~~ would also like to mention that children and youth can learn with lecturers or scientists from the colleges where students want to enter. And in this case ~~there is no m.~~ no ~~matte~~ matter if you are from the capital or not. In Russia most of colleges and universities are located in Moscow ^{sp} ~~with~~ ^{sp} what is a problem ^{sp} ~~for~~ ^{sp} students from other towns. ~~With~~ ^{sp} learning technologies these problems doesn't ^{sp} make sense. ^{sp}

make sense. 65
It's important that traditional in-person learning and learning through tech technologies have an apparent distinction. It is thought that learning through technologies is less helpful than in-person learning. I'd like to counterargument this idea. The abilities of student's learning depend on the motivation of a person and also on his or her goals. No matter ~~if person~~ what type of lesson it is if person does not want to reach good results high results.

In conclusion, I strongly believe that learning through technologies is a future type of ~~learn~~ learning. It has too much pros, ~~so~~ ^{and} ~~that's~~ ^{so} why this type would not be neglected.

Nowadays some people may hold the opinion that learning online learning can be compared with in-person lessons. Personally, I totally agree with that statement. It is undeniable that offline lessons in schools and universities are very important, but to my personal opinion, remote education can be even more productive for students. 48

Let us start with considering the facts. Undoubtedly a lot of students can spend a huge amount of time on the road to their university. For instance, all my ~~class~~ friends from school usually spend about one hour a day just to come to the lecture. However, that time can be used more productively if we ~~will~~ start some online lectures in our school. Students will have an opportunity to learn more with the same amount of time. 78

~~Furthermore, online lessons can have the same efficiency with ^{offline} real life lessons.~~

Furthermore, it will be unfair not to mention that fact that the online lessons ^s may be as productive as ^{the} offline lessons. The reason for that is simple, during online lesson students have an opportunity to speak with their teacher and to answer all necessary questions that they have, and consequently be efficient. For example, I always enjoyed to take part in interesting discussions at my online lessons during COVID-19 epidemic.

Taking into consideration all mentioned above, I can say that there are lot of interesting ways of ~~study~~ learning something new sp and due to that very education institution need to find something convincing for students. At the most important is to find brilliant teachers ~~because rarely~~ who can make their lessons really interesting even in some different conditions.

Nowadays, according to the various statistics and social experience, the influence of online technologies like zoom is certainly increasing. Most ~~of~~ ^{help} students feel themselves absolutely okay in this ~~educational~~ education environment. Some people even think that remote learning can be equally effective as the traditional classroom learning. Nevertheless, according to ^{my} personal opinion, I disagree with the statement, mentioned above. And now I can explain why.

First of all, online education is the reason for ~~declining~~ ^{help} the quality of eye sight among (the) teenagers. Spending most of the time in front of computers also means problems with back and ^{use} posture. Furthermore, there is no class around that ^{can} causes the lack of socialisation as such ^{an} important period of life. Moreover, the quality of education itself is pretty doubtful. Teenagers and kids ^{help} ^{can} tend to pay their attention more to scrolling the social media and chatting online rather than ^{listen} ^{a teacher}. That is a significant problem ^{however}. Besides, not every pupil possesses ^{well} technologies. ^{help} In contrast, there can be an opinion that remote learning ^{help} ^{let} students use the newest technologies and interact ^{can} can be possible in the frames of in-person classroom learning.

To sum up, modern technologies shouldn't be underestimated ^{but} ^{its} value in the modern society is incredible, but there also must be boundaries between ^{sp} accessible usage of ^{his} technologies and ^{its} situations when they ^{it} is not needed at all. People mostly be suffering from problems, ^{caused} ^{from} social networks. with

There is an opinion that remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. Personally, I agree with the statement. I believe that sometimes online education can be even more productive than offline one. 39

To begin with, technologies that simplify remote learning are developing at an incredible speed. Indeed, in the past time distance learning was just speaking over the video calls and turning on YouTube videos. Nowadays, there are many platforms that make online learning interesting and effective. ~~Moreover~~ For instance, there are websites such as Miro and Notion, where teachers share study plans and create interactive tasks. I had lessons on such Internet platforms myself. The tests that my tutors have created on this online desks helped me get more thorough in my studies. Moreover, I could see the themes that I was going to have beforehand and it made the progress more structured. Thus, remote learning can provide innovative forms of studying and progress control, structure the educational process. 122

Furthermore, distance learning is a great solution for busy people, who do not have a lot of time for commuting to classes and doing homework. With online classes they are able to study from any place and do tasks without being connected to a desk. For example, my friend Maxim is getting his Bachelor degree. Not long ago, he got an internship from the university. He got a permission to attend his classes online as it is more crucial to perform well at work ~~the~~ compared to writing down lectures. Indeed, now he studies while being in a bus and does his tasks during breaks.

To conclude, remote learning provides opportunity to keep a high academic performance due to the ability to study anywhere at any time.

All in all, I claim that remote learning is equally effective in comparison with face to face classes because it provides a variety of tasks and forms in which a person can learn. Moreover, it is more convenient in terms of transportation and schedule. 95

It is not a secret that nowadays remote learning, or E-learning, has more and more influence. This is happened because of some economics crisis, ^{hep} COVID-19 and more. People began to spend more time at home, with their phones and computers. That is why E-learning is so popular today: people become more isolated than earlier.

Remote learning can be equally effective compared to in-person classroom learning. First of all, people stay in comfortable place and have no stressful situations from classroom environment. Moreover, people can do some noises or actions, which help them to concentrate but could distract others, and when they do the E-learning with technologies like ZOOM they can do it without any ~~bothering~~ ^{lex} bothering for others. That kind of learning can be even more effective than in-person learning as we talk about some special situations. For example, if person works a lot but wants to get a degree, he can do remote learning. To make it understandable, if you go to university after work, it will make you tired and soon your health and concentration, and energy will be getting worse. Meanwhile, if you do E-learning, you will be enough concentrated and able to stay healthy without ^{too} a damage for your educational process.

However there are some minuses. For Example, it can be too difficult to understand and memorize information when you study remote. Also, it makes people more isolated because they have less reasons to go outside.

In conclusion, I want to say that there are a lot of opportunities for improvement and plenty of them are online. Also, there are some minuses but people should not be afraid of them because there are much more pluses.

Topic №2.

It is interesting for me to follow the news about changes in social sphere. The current standard of the workweek length is 40 hours. I disagree with the idea of reducing it to 30 hours despite all the positive consequences it would have.

First, it is considered to improve psychological state of employees as they would allocate more time to their families and leisure activities. Nevertheless, the feeling of being a part of the work community is as essential as the work and life balance. Hence, social relations between coworkers might be weakened by employees spending less time together.

Second, the standard of the workweek length is a part of the law system. Correcting it would lead to altering other elements. For instance, the requirements on the quantity of hours under-aged could work during the week as some of them are more than 30 hours.

It means that all contradictions should be observed. Furthermore, the process of accepting new laws includes many stages. Hence, making changes in the current legacy system would bring the range of financial costs.

It is also worth mentioning that some employees, especially the workers of factories, have the payment according to the amount of things produced. Therefore, they would get lower income unless the standards of evaluation of their work ~~would~~ be changed equally.

Considering all, the reasons to disagree with the given position are compelling enough.

In ~~a~~ long perspective such small changes in workweek length could lead to breaks in different spheres of government regulation. For example, to an economic reduction or shortening the budget ~~of the gover~~ of the government. Could this be justified by improving mental state of the workers? I tend to answer negatively to this tempting ~~questing~~ question of modern life and contemporary society.

To my mind school students can really benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes. First of all, part-time job provides a unique experience of working, which will definitely help students to choose their future career. Also, by working part-time students can earn a great amount of money, which will ~~help~~ be useful for their family or while attending a university. For example, a student who worked as a shop assistant may understand while completing his job that the sphere of marketing is definitely not for him. While a student who didn't even try to work in a concrete job won't be able to find out for himself what particular job suits him and what kind of sphere he finds interesting.

Secondly, part-time job can be counted as a some kind of relaxation facility after studying, especially if you have some friends there or really like your place of work. All in all, one of the most crucial reason for working part-time is socialising. Of course there are a great variety of places which may provide a socialisation opportunities as well as part-time jobs, but to my mind contacts on jobs are much more important than the common ones. They may help you to find a job or ~~provide~~ provide some instructions. Also they may organise you a meeting with a company member who may provide you a job or recommend you to a particular company.

To sum up, I strongly believe that high school students can benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes, because it helps them to become independent and provide a lot of other useful facilities.

Вопрос:

1. Почему в Voc (1-5) в 1/1 нельзя написать services?
2. Почему в Reading (6-10) в 1/6 нельзя написать accusations вместо allegations? Потому что accusation можно использовать без дополнения
3. Почему в Reading (6-10) в 1/6 perseverance не подходит? Это определение в задании оно подходит.
4. Почему в Voc (6-10) в 1/9 нельзя написать face-to-face (B)? Потому что если написать это выражение, то предложение также имеет смысл.
5. Почему в Grammar (1-5) в 1/1 нельзя написать had no consequence on? Это выражение имеет значение: алгебра C was of no consequence to. Это также удовлетворяет все условия задания

Creative writing - Topic № 1

In our digital world there are some doubts about whether the on line learning is equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom studying or not. Some people have an opinion, ⁸ that students should ~~be~~ study only in a traditional way, while others are opposite - they confirm that remote learning is good too. ⁸ So, this topic requeres serioes consideration. ^{8p}

On the one hand, studying does ~~not~~ ^{not} mean only learning some new information or new skills, but also it is about being socialized. Definitel children should become a part a society ^{10.0} by face to face communication with their peers and not by some social media. That would help them in their future life and, of course, in studying.

On the other hand, there is an opinion that education in remote places that are far from big cities, is not that good and professional. More and more children and teenagers from all over the world are starting to have an opportunity to study in ~~the~~ ^{8p} place they want, no matter where do they live. This access to education incourage people to be more hard-working and to achieve their goals. This is the reason why remote learning through technologie like Zoom, can be even more effective ^{2.00}. Moreover, remote learning enables people ^{8p} not to spend too much time on the way to school/university, but on studying. ^{6p}

^{8p} To sum up, both ways of studying - remote learning via technologies and traditional in-person classroom learning are equally effective. However, the effectivness depends only on students' desire to learn new things. In my honest opinion, the person should choose his or her own the most effective way to study.

REMOTE LEARNING

As our society is undergoing rapid and substantial changes, we are becoming more open-minded in terms of education. Zoom and other apps providing high-quality video and audio calls took off during covid-19 epidemia, boosting the field of online education. I'm ^{sp} of the opinion that remote learning can be equally effective compared to offline learning, ^{if} properly organized.

Of course, there are some requirements, which allow you to make the most of ^{your} online lessons. Firstly, online classes should not be overcrowded with users so that they don't become unwilling to turn on their microphones and cameras. Secondly, it is teacher's responsibility to keep listener's attention by asking questions. If these ^{requirements} ~~conditions~~ are met, neither students nor teachers will miss anything out. 118

As for the upcoming objections from those who consider remote learning ineffective, I can address your reasoning. If you find your students getting distracted, there is only one way to solve the problem, which is to clamour for cameras on. If you are a student, not ~~being~~ able to focus on what the lecturer is saying, I bet the problem is in him, not in your remoteness from him. Some people also claim that ^{online} conferences can become unbearable because of the technical difficulties, but usually they stem from your or teacher's incompetence or a poor internet connection, which can be fixed in a couple of seconds. And the key to successful online learning is ^{the} responsiveness on questions like "Can you hear me well?". 122

All things considered, online learning is not ^{any} too different from traditional classes, as it provides the ^{very} same tools for communicating, ~~it~~ even including blackboards. However, ~~it~~ depends the quality of ^{learning} education depends on your attitude to it, as it does in the classroom, too. 42.

As our world is developing and many new technological inventions are appearing, people are starting to improve the quality of their lives and make them easier. Educational sphere has also been involved in these improvements, as online studying has become a great opportunity to learn new things. I would love to give my opinion on the ^{lex}profitability of using technologies like Zoom for education.

In my opinion, such platforms can be really useful for talking to your remote-living friends or family members, but not for studying. ~~For example~~, School or university is the place that has many advantages in comparison to online studying. For example, you become more responsible and mature, as you have to wake up early every day, get to school on time and dress properly. Also, it is hard to deny that society plays a big ^{role in} our lives. When we go to school, we can see people face to face, talk to them and learn interesting things from their experience.

Online platforms demand a lot of diligence and determination, as the person needs to take care of his education by himself every single day. When you study at home or alone, you can get lazy or lose the focus very quickly. Not many people can look after themselves properly and make themselves not lose motivation. So for most of us online studying can be quite challenging.

In conclusion, I would love to say that technologies became a giant part of our lives. However, in my opinion, ²⁵⁰there are some spheres that shouldn't be affected that much ^{by} technological development.

Undoubtedly choosing a career path has always been tough. In the past young people would depend on their parents' opinion as opposing elderly generation was uncommon. The young did not have opportunity to follow their dreams or a career that they would find perfect. Fortunately, time goes by. Nowadays, adolescents and children do not have to rely on their parents' opinion. Though, the topic still causes heated arguments.

In my opinion, children and teenagers should seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major. Firstly, adults usually have wide experience. Many ~~of the~~ middle-aged men and women have tried plenty of jobs during their life. Therefore, they know the advantages, disadvantages and peculiarities of each sphere. In addition to that, employed people are a part of labour market so they can notice demanding and well-paid professions. Finally, parents usually pay for college or a student loan. If they dislike their child's major, they can stop paying.

However, blindly following somebody's advice is not a good idea. Sometimes teenagers and their parents do not see eye to eye on many things and it may lead to conflicts and arguments. Furthermore, there are situations when adults reflect the dreams which ~~it~~ could not be fulfilled on children. Therefore, young people may lose themselves and be unsure about their own aims and goals.

In conclusion, I would like to say that it is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding a college major. Our parents would never wish us failure or a miserable life so they are definitely willing to help. Anyway, it is important to stay conscious and remember about your own plans. Only combining various points of view will help to find a solution ~~for~~ this eternal problem.

It is not a secret that the covid period had a considerable effect on our learning process. In many countries thousands of students were sitting at home, monitoring the screens of their laptops or computers in case they had a new task from ^{their} teacher or a Zoom lesson. Undoubtedly, this type of learning has both advantages and ~~disadvantages~~ ^{sp} disadvantages.

I'd like to start with pros. First of all, being completely honest, it is quite more comfortable and enjoyable for me as a student to be at home - a place, where no one can disturb me or offend. For many students, who, unfortunately, had an experience ^{sp} of being bullied by classmates, I believe, it is ^a really great option. Second of all, with our constantly developing world, I mean in technology sphere, it's rather attractive for ~~pe~~ adolescents to work with ~~their~~ gadgets as they are used to this modern rythm ^{sp} of life ^{sp} with high use of devices. ^{165 W.}

Obviously, this way of learning has a negative ~~effect~~ impact on young generation. Unsurprisingly, there are far more cons. The most popular one is ^{surely} a lack of communication. The majority of students felt lonely during ~~(the)~~ remote studying. As for me, I had a strong feeling of not being understood, heard and supported. Our traditional in-person system allows us to interact with society everyday: we can find new friends, share opinions on some topics, have discussions with classmates or teachers, we can also ask questions if we don't understand something, finally. I don't deny that all this ^{br} things could be done either by Zoom or other platforms but there is a special face-to-face conversation's value that ^{br} a computer can't give us. Moreover, not everyone has an appropriate equipment to attend online lessons ~~due to several financial or other reasons.~~

To sum up, I do think that ^{br} way of learning with the help of technologies can be ^{rather} effective than traditional, if only there would be all ~~needed~~ facilities and possibilities needed and guaranteed.

Deciding on a college major is a big step for a child. In many cases this decision becomes an ordeal ^{as teenagers} ~~as children~~ either don't understand their interests or don't see the career perspectives in the certain field. That's why it's a popular question whether parents should help their children ^{so} to choose their path. I'm convinced that teenagers need to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college ~~major~~ major for the next reasons.

Firstly, adults are more experienced in their lives. Many parents tried different professions, so they understand their specifics. While the children usually don't know these sides ¹⁰⁰ of the jobs. That's why ^{to the child} a parent can give the ~~advice on the~~ information about the average salary, working schedule, personality traits that are needed for the job, skills and other things.

Secondly, ~~but~~ parents know their children well. ~~They~~ Sometimes they understand ~~the~~ teenagers' interests ¹⁵⁰ more than the teenagers do. ~~They~~ Parents have seen the hobbies of ~~the~~ and other activities of their children and are capable of distinguishing which field is more suitable for the teenager. They also know their character traits, for example, my mother says that I'm a very logical and rational person ²⁰⁰ but I've never thought about this as I perceive myself differently. This information can really help me to choose my path correctly. Many teenagers also don't ^{see} understand some of their good and bad sides.

To sum up, I think it's really important for the child to have their parents by their side while deciding on a college major because adults have a lot of ^{life} experience, they truly understand their children's interests, personal traits, good and bad sides. ~~Sometimes~~ ^{often} parents can give a very good advice on the future career as they know ~~to~~ teenagers better.

Nowadays students can have a part-time job after school. However, ~~does~~^{will} it help them in life or just distract from studies? In this essay I want to discuss this question.

On the one hand, part-time jobs can be beneficial. Students can gather experience for their future. They develop time-management skills, learn how to behave themselves. They get to know how to make and save up money before they are fully adults. Trying to make personal budget is a good practice. Moreover, part-time jobs are a good way of meeting new people. Connections are always useful. 96

On the other hand, part-time jobs take a lot of time and effort. Firstly, students get easily exhausted after school. They have a lot of homework to do. If after that they need to go somewhere else, it will exhaust them even more. Particularly, it will ruin their studies. Secondly, there will be enough time for teenagers to work as adults. Why they should waste moments of their freedom? 69

Personally, I think that part-time jobs bring more damage than benefits. I am a student myself and I can not imagine working during school. If you really want to try, you can find a job during ~~the~~ a summer break. That way you will still be able to get experience without harming your grades. 68

In the end^{sp} I want to say that some people might argue with my position and if you try very hard it is possible to combine work and studies. However, just remember that if you are a high school student ~~and the~~ there will be enough time for you to work in the future. 104

Creative writing. Topic №2: The presently accepted standard ~~of~~ ^{workweek} of 40 hours should be ~~reduced~~ considered and potentially reduced to 30 hours.

Nowadays the most common job schedule includes working from nine to five with an average of 40 hours a week. But recently more and more ~~many~~ employers tend to develop a reduced workweek of 30 hours as they believe it will be more effective. The question is, should we actually reconsider the standard or keep it the way it is right now?

At a first sight, it may seem like longer working hours means ~~more~~ better results. The employers try to make the most out of their employees as their main ^{goal} ~~purpose~~ is to make more money. Surprisingly, in most cases they fail ^{to do so} as they do not bother to pay attention to workers' physical and mental state, which directly affects their productivity. So, in my personal view, the 30-hour working week should ~~be~~ not only ^{be} a preference, but a rule.

When people work too much and stop taking breaks, they become tired of their hectic lifestyles. Even if they manage to achieve their goals, they ~~don't~~ ^{no longer} feel satisfaction from it. On the contrary, they are disillusioned and disappointed in themselves. This, in return, leads to stress and ~~problems~~ with ~~their~~ physical and mental health. People stop going to their working places due to various illnesses and this ^{may} ~~will~~ actually result in financial losses for business owners. But with only 6 hours ^{of} working ~~every~~ day each and every employee can spend a lot of their personal time relaxing with their nearest and dearest by their side. This helps them to maintain stability and ~~balance~~ not only in family, but at work too.

To sum up, I ^{would} like to say that the ~~common~~ standard of working 40 hours a week has only negative consequences. In my opinion, it ~~should~~ should be shortened to ~~the amount of~~ 30 hours as it has been proven to be more advantageous for both workers and employers.

~~Nowadays not many teenagers who are studying~~

Nowadays ~~the~~ part-time jobs are getting ~~popular~~ popular with high school students. Some people think that ~~they~~ ^{having a job} can have a bad effect on studying. Others believe that working while attending classes is very useful for students. I understand both points of view. 19

Firstly, teenagers who go to ~~the~~ school have to study very hard if they want to pass all their exams. That is why, it is very difficult for them to find some time for work. What is more, having a job causes a lot of stress which can make students' mental health worse. 52

However, ~~there are some advantages of~~ there are some advantages of finding a part-time job. First of all, teenagers will definitely become more responsible and independent if they have a job. Also, students ~~will learn~~ will learn how to manage their time which ^{will be} a helpful skill in the future. Moreover, ~~part-time jobs~~ teenagers will be experienced after having a part-time job. Using ~~this~~ this experience they will be able to find better jobs when they finish school. Furthermore, part-time jobs will ^{help} ~~help~~ students to decide which full-time ~~or~~ job they want to have or at least to understand their ~~own~~ abilities and desires. 92

To sum up, I believe that the result of having a part-time job depends on the students themselves. ~~Only~~ Only teenagers themselves know what they are capable of and only they can decide what they should do. In my opinion, it is better to try to have a part-time job ~~than~~ because I think that high school students can benefit from it. 58

Remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning."

There have been a lot of discussions on the topic of remote learning recently. This is really important nowadays and have become ~~an extremely~~ in part and parcel of our life. There are two different points of view on this topic that I would like to present you. 46

From the first point of view, remote learning through technologies ~~is~~ can be not only equal to in-person learning, but also can be superior to it. This opinion can be proved by significant improvements in accessibility of education and its cheapness. Actually, connecting to classes through Zoom ~~lets~~ ^{lets} students get education from wherever they want. Moreover, reduction in printing textbooks, testpapers and workbooks saves money and ecology. 47

From the other point of view, superiority, without a doubt, belongs to traditional way of getting education. Learning with computers creates lots of negative factors that lower students' concentration and make it impossible for them to maintain laser-like focus on the problem they are solving.

Personally, I disagree with the mentioned statement. My own attitude to ~~remote~~ learning through technologies is highly negative, as, for me, the downsides are overwhelming the upsides. Also, I personally find it really hard to perceive information from digital sources, so my preferences are given to the in-person variant. 92

In conclusion, I would like to say that despite being useful for distant learning, programmes like Zoom are not very useful for learning. For me, traditional variants will always be ~~preferred~~ more reliable and suitable. 34

In the recent years, especially after the epidemic of COVID-19 remote learning technologies like Zoom became very popular and remain being convenient for students and teachers. But is distant learning as effective as traditional in-person classroom learning?

First of all we need to agree that remote learning technologies give students more space and reduce their time going to school and back. ~~Also~~ But indeed sometimes ~~it~~ they can feel too much freedom and become less hard-working and oversleep lessons, play games while the lesson is going and overall take their studies as their freetime. However, I think that there are some ways to prevent such behaviour. For example, teacher can ask students to turn their cameras on to see what they're doing and while the lesson is in process, ~~pose~~ ask questions so the teacher knows that everyone is listening to him. I also can agree that remote learning is more effective in small groups, because they are easier to control. 156

Second of all, remote learning technologies like Zoom let teachers use all the benefits of the Internet. ~~Lessons~~ Lessons can become even more interactive and even entertaining if they present some videos to their students, or ~~work~~ work with them on the interactive whiteboards like Miro. That helps students to be more involved in the lesson ~~and~~ while taking part in quizzes ~~and~~ watching videos, ~~playing~~ games and learning from colorful tables.

As a result, I believe that remote learning technologies can make the learning process more interesting for students. But to make it as effective as the traditional in-person studying, teachers need to make some effort and control over the class while teaching them. 11

I agree that distance learning using technologies like Zoom can be just as effective compared to traditional face-to-face classroom learning. Despite the challenges, the benefits and achievements of our education outweigh the disadvantages.

Firstly, distance learning offers flexibility. This allows people to access education from anywhere in the world, eliminating geographical restrictions. Students can study at their own pace and adapt their schedule to meet other commitments. This can be especially useful ²⁰ for working professionals, people with disabilities, or those who live in remote areas. Moreover, online platforms provide a variety of resources, including recorded lectures, interactive modules and so on. 100

Secondly, distance learning promotes digital literacy and prepares students to work in a modern work force. In an increasingly digital world, mastery of online communication and collaboration tools ⁸ is crucial. Distance learning introduces students to these technologies, giving them the necessary skills for their future careers. This is in line with the demands of an emerging job market where remote work and digital skills are becoming more common.

Critics argue that distance learning lacks the same level of personal interaction as traditional classrooms. While it is true that face-to-face interaction can improve certain aspects of learning, online platforms have evolved to address this issue. Zoom and similar tools offer features such as discussion rooms, virtual whiteboards and chat features to facilitate real-time interaction.

In conclusion, distance learning using technologies such as Zoom can be just as effective compared to traditional classroom learning. The flexibility and accessibility it offers, along with the development of digital literacy, outweigh the potential limitations. By leveraging the strengths of online platforms, we can improve the educational experience and narrow the gap between distance and face-to-face learning. 177

It is hard to deny that remote learning is becoming more and more widespread nowadays. There are several views on the topic. While some people are convinced that remote learning can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning, some hesitate about that. I am one of them and I am going to prove my point of view in this response. 60

Firstly, I believe that while learning online, students lack concentration. It is much easier to hide the fact that one is not paying enough attention to the lesson, so most children use this opportunity to surf the Internet and play video games, while the teachers are trying to give them some knowledge. Moreover, there is no way to check the results of student's learning, as cheating is getting less difficult. 70
~~The~~ Although, some programs were created that control where a person looks and what programs are opened on his laptop, they are ~~no~~ still being ~~dev~~ developed and are not effective enough.

Secondly, it is crucial to have a well-prepared space that is intended to study and work in. While studying at home, most children risk to be distracted by their pets, family members and so on. In addition to that, I personally had ~~with~~ witnessed a lot of stories where students were having Zoom 81

Nowadays more and more people are beginning to think that children should seek their parents' advice when choosing a college major. However, there are still those who are sceptical about it.

On the one hand, asking your parents for help may not be a good idea. To begin with, being people of another generation they sometimes cannot understand and embrace modern tendencies, ~~so their view~~ and can be too conservative, so their view on the choice of a college major may be old-fashioned. Moreover, some parents might insist on their children following their footsteps that can lead to ignorance of children's plans and wishes.

On the other hand, children should definitely seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major. Firstly, parents know their children since the moment of birth, so they are perfectly aware of their interests and abilities and can help them take it into account. Furthermore, every parent cares for their children and want them to become accomplished people and succeed in life. Therefore, they are interested in the best choice and opportunities for you more than anyone else. In addition, parents have invaluable life ~~experiee~~ experience that their children lack, so they can give good advice based on ~~their own experience~~ various situations in their life.

In conclusion, I completely agree with the statement that children ought to ask their parents for help when choosing ~~on~~ a college major because I believe wholeheartedly that ^{seeking} parents' ~~advice piece of advice~~ is ~~the~~ the best way to ~~decide~~ come to the right decision about your future.

Task 1. (1-5) Read the text and choose the correct option.

Transfer your answers onto the answer sheet.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing “academic integrity and promise.” A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous “tip” that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings’ grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

 - A. a school for gifted students.
 - ☒ B. a school with many wealthy students.

2. What is clear about the student who accused Elizabeth of cheating?
I - The student is a former friend of Elizabeth.

II - The student does not want anyone to know who he or she is.

III - The student is either lying or mistaken.

- A. I only
- B. I and II
- ☒ C. II and III
- D. I, II, and III

3. Which of the following is best described as brazen?

- A. A dog chases a cat up a tree.
- B. A little girl wins the National Spelling Bee with hard work.
- C. A man walks his dog during the rain.
- ☒ D. A woman steps in front of a bus to make it to stop.

4. Why is Elizabeth so sure that she will learn who has accused her of cheating?

- A. Her friends will help her.
- ☒ B. The community is so small.
- C. She thinks the person will come forward.
- D. She thinks the person will be the recipient of the Blauvelt Award.

5. The Blauvelt Award is important to Elizabeth because it will

- A. prove she is intelligent.

It is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major.

Some people suggest that parents can give decent pieces of advice on which college major to choose. Other people think that a child should decide by himself with no parents' help involved. Who is right and who is wrong? I will try to answer that question.

I would like to start with the main points of each of the position. Position of deciding by a child only is quite simple. Children who are about to go to college are not quite children anymore, so they have to obtain the ability to make choices that will majorly affect their life. In addition, this point of view is being spread by people who ~~are~~ accidentally became victims of their parents who decided to choose a college major for a child instead of giving an opportunity to choose by himself, which lead to the poor decision of the college major.

That is quite reasonable response and I respect it, but is opposite opinion bad. Of course not, people who recommended seeking a guidance from parents when choosing college major actually have a point, as parents are always more experienced than their kids and can give wise pieces of advice even though they are not the ones who will go to college. Well, the solution is simple as always. The key ingredient is balance. You can combine your own opinion with an opinion of your parents as you are the one who knows his needs and parents are the ones who can share the experience for you to fulfill those needs. All in all, it is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major, but the point is to make it a guidance, not an order what to study.

Topic №2.

I strongly agree with the statement that the presently accepted standard workweek of 40 hours should be reconsidered and potentially reduced to 30 hours. I have a number of reasons and examples that can help me justify my opinion.³⁹

The first reason is that a workweek of 40 hours can lead to overwork and, as a result, high levels of stress, which can cause health problems. This leads to workers ~~th~~ taking breaks from work or even ~~hiring firing~~ quitting work to ~~have~~ gain enough time to improve their health. It results in lack of workers and difficulties in hiring people.⁴⁹

The second reason is that because of 40 hours workweek people do not have enough a satisfying amount of free time which people use to spend time with their families, friends or to take up new hobbies. The lack of free time and, ~~at~~ therefore, lack of ~~communication~~ interaction with nearest and dearest can lead to depression and feeling of loneliness, which can result in worse effectiveness during working hours and lack of concentration.¹⁶⁸

~~The reduce potential reduce~~

It is evident that the ~~4~~ standard workweek of 40 hours does not let people to relax and to unwind during their spare time. Home responsibilities add stress and it also can be a reason for people ~~firing~~. The workers ~~who~~ have families ~~do~~ with kids do not have an appropriate amount of time to spend with their offsprings, ~~as as~~ ~~they~~ come from work ~~exhausted~~ ^{late} and just want to ~~sleep or relax~~ relax, instead of ~~paying~~ paying attention to their kids.

The potential reduce of the workweek duration to 30 hours will result in people having enough time ~~to~~ relax and gain strength for the following working week.

It will also ~~end~~ ~~increase~~ ~~increase~~ boost the working abilities of workers as they will come to work ~~relax~~ and ~~satisfied~~ satisfied.

Going through sorts of disasters, problems and economical declines people have created lots of technologies, that provide them new opportunities in all kinds of activities. Remote learning through different services and applications is one of them. Such type of the learning process is a cause of debate whether it can be called equally efficient compared to ~~the~~ traditional options or not, and I'm going to give point out ~~all~~ pros and cons for this topic. hex vh

Talking about the points for this statement I should firstly mention that many technologies allow to communicate like it is during in-life learning process; ~~for example~~. For example: web-cameras, interactive whiteboards, sites that give opportunities to hand your work to the teacher and more. Many schools created their own platforms for having lessons and tests, making calls and doing all sorts of home work. Not so they b only give a sense of presence at school, but keep the teacher in control of students and their learning.

As for the points against calling remote learning equally efficient effective compared to in-person one it is needed to say about teacher not really being able to pay attention to all of the students, like it is shown during calls with them. Moreover, some appliances provide the children with opportunities to cheat during b tests and classes. Lots of student use AI services in order to find the correct h answer, which ~~is~~ leads to them not being able to learn as it is needed.

To sum up, remote learning is one of ~~or~~ the most complicated things for teachers and their students. As for me, it is still not such a perfect system and ~~it~~ is losing against traditional studying.

I think that having part-time jobs has some pros and cons but I agree with the statement that high school students can benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes.

As for the advantages of having ⁵⁰ part-time jobs, I should say that it is one of the best ways of earning teenagers' own money. If a teenager is working part-time, he does not need to ask his parents different uncomfortable questions about pocket money and he can spend ~~them~~ money on everything that he wants. That way ^{this} teenagers will also learn ¹⁰⁰ about economy and budgeting which can help ~~them~~ in ^{his} future and independent life. Moreover working part-time, ~~can improve~~ teenagers can improve their critical thinking and get some useful information that may be necessary for their work and school. For example: this information may be useful for doing projects and other tasks at school. Also if a teenager ~~have~~ has a part-time job, he can meet some clever and intelligent people who will help ~~young people~~ with ¹⁵⁰ ~~their~~ ^{his} homework (if this teenager does not understand a task).

It is hard to deny that having part-time jobs while attending classes has some disadvantages. Sometimes teenagers just will not have enough time to do their homework. Also ²⁰⁰ young people may be tired of doing too much work. But I believe that the best solutions to these problems would involve learning effective time management and going to bed earlier to have enough sleep. Moreover, teenagers can ask their parents to help young people ²⁵⁰ to get used to their new way of life.

I would like to conclude by saying that having part-time jobs is definitely important for high school students, ²⁸⁰ because they can get ready for their future and independent life while doing it, and also they can meet new interesting people and learn how to do many new things and tasks.

There is a common opinion nowadays that remote learning through technologies can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. As for me, I partly agree with this statement. I think that learning online has its own ^{help} up- and downsides, but still can't be as good as learning offline. To support my position, I will name the most compelling reasons.

On one hand, learning from home is very convenient. Students can ^{help} maintain new information from their cozy rooms, not having to get out of their pyjamas or to do make-up. Remote learning is also not as time-consuming as learning ¹⁰⁰ in the classrooms in-person. When learning the traditional way, people have to travel around the city everyday to become educated. As for studying online, you don't have to wake up earlier and waste your time on the ride.

On the other hand, remote learning has a lot of problems. Firstly, some ¹⁵⁰ people can't afford the technologies needed and have to spend a small fortune on a laptop or a tablet. Secondly, the attention span of people learning through Zoom can sometimes be lower than the attention span of people attending offline classes. You can ~~always~~ leave the online class at any moment or just scroll down the social media news feed. Personally, I think this is one of the biggest problems people face when studying from home. And lastly, cheating. This is a common practice for people studying online. Some people cheat while doing online-tests or passing their exams, so their ²⁵⁰ real knowledge level can't be seen. That makes people forget how to think without Google by their side.

To conclude, I want to say that in my opinion remote learning through technologies has its own benefits and certainly is more convenient for some people, but still can't be as effective as traditional way of studying.

Nowadays ~~the~~ ^{esp} technologies are developing very fast. Some time ago we couldn't even imagine that it would be so easy to study online. From my point of view, it is necessary to continue to keep pace and to use new technologies for learning as they allow to keep the same level of education as a traditional in-person classroom learning. 59

First of all, the new applications are becoming better and better, because if we use them more often in our study process, we allow the app ^{ven} ~~intons~~ to find the mistakes as well as to analyse a instructional feedback from the students and their teachers. Hence, now remote learning can be compared with a traditional system. 55

Modern technologies ~~modern~~ provide us with all ~~more~~ vital functions and options. For instance, it is affordable to have the different type of lessons using Zoom, such as a lecture, when teachers present some new materials for the students on a practical lesson, when all students can divide into groups and report a project on to make some exercises. Moreover, the apps like Zoom give an opportunity to see each other, ~~and~~ as well as to text each of the members and hear of a conference and to conduct the polls among the participants. According to these, I can conclude ^{the} that sitting in a real class with ~~your~~ ^a teacher and ~~classmates~~ ^{the} and studying a new theme can be compared with ~~doing all the same actions, but in online format~~ ^{remote learning}. That is why the educational results of student who study online and offline ~~can't~~ ^{sp} be extremely different.

Furthermore, I believe that remote learning can even more effective than a traditional in-person classroom learning, because they ~~are~~ intend to become better. Even today ^{in the near future} online technologies allow to combine different formats in ~~an~~ educational process such as interactive tests, new options of work in team, video lectures. ~~Moreover~~ Besides, remote studying can be more effective because it allows students to create ~~a~~ a necessary atmosphere around them and to not to spend time going to school. 55

In conclusion, I would like to say that modern technologies such a great number of different functions ~~as~~. we can ~~can't~~ ^{sp} even notice the difference between remote learning and ~~a~~ traditional offline lessons. However at the same time the modern apps also continue to develop and I believe that in the near future ~~a~~ remote learning will be ~~an~~ ^{an} ~~attention~~ ^{attention} 55

Many children want to decide what career to pursue since their childhood. In most cases they do not know how to choose the right career option. Students are able to read some information about careers on the Internet or different websites, take part in pro-orientational tests, attend universities or ~~seek~~ ask their parents for help.

I totally agree that children should seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major. Undoubtedly, I have a few arguments on this issue. Firstly, parents have more experience in this field because they have already chosen their job and, of course, a career. Parents are able to give a piece of advice to their children. The most important there is not to impose parents' curfews on their children. Secondly, parents know ~~their~~ character and hobbies of their children: in the childhood, at school and so on. So, they (parents) can easily tell children what they liked when they were little children. I want to give my own example. When I was a child, I liked to play with dolls as I was ~~to be~~ their teacher. I gave my dolls notebooks and imagined I was their teacher. Then, when I was in the seventh form,

I started to learn ^a chinese language. My parents supported my decision and gave me money on it. When I was deciding what to choose as a college major, my parents told me that I would become an amazing chinese and English teacher. I chose exams and I hope I would pass them with flying colours.

In conclusion, I want to add it is of vital importance to seek guidance from parents when deciding on a college major.

1. Remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning

After a ~~large~~ lockdown during the pandemic time of COVID-19 all of the students have experienced studying online. ~~But~~ We were attending classes on Zoom, ^{and} sending emails to our teachers, and sitting comfortably at home. But ~~can~~ can remote learning be as effective as traditional in-person ~~study~~ classroom learning?

I believe this method of studying has both benefits and disadvantages. First of all, ~~of course~~ ~~we~~ students had quite ^{flexible} schedule and didn't have to waste time going to school or university. At home students felt more comfortable than at school, that's why some of them might have been pretty active in classes. When studying online, you have more time to learn the subjects and do your homework, which you can benefit from and make your average score higher.

But the flipside of remote learning is tangible too. I can't but mention that a lot of students caused ^{many} a lot of troubles in ~~case of~~ online-studying during COVID-19. Some of them pretended to have problems with their web-cameras or ~~micro~~ microphones. ^{Plenty} of learners were too lazy to wake up early and attend the first classes. What's more, cheating on tests and exams became, ~~a more frequent case~~ a more frequent case and teachers just couldn't ~~not~~ avoid it.

~~Speaking~~ Speaking about teachers. It was also extremely difficult for them to get used to the new system. They were often ^{compared} with emails from their students. For ~~some~~ many teachers it was hard to cope with new technologies ~~due to~~ their age.

However, responsible and ~~respectful~~ students really did benefit from online-studying. Flexible timetable and cozy atmosphere ^{can} stimulate your studying process. So everything depends on ~~the~~ ^{your} personality of ~~a student~~ a student.

In conclusion, I personally disagree that remote learning can be equally effective²⁵⁰ compared to traditional learning. Students lose motivation, tend to cheat and sometimes even show disrespect to the teachers. There are some people that manage to make online-studying effective. But you have to be really determined.

Nowadays, with the development of technology industry, people can do almost anything from the comfort of their own home. Order groceries, visit online stores, talk with friends over the phone, watch movies without having to go to a crowded cinema and so on. Covid-19 forced us to even study online, providing a way to never leave the bed. 58 voc. gr.

Is the statement "Remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning" true? In my personal opinion, no it's gr not. I, myself, had the pleasure of testing this theory and it didn't gr pass the test. Or, honestly speaking, I didn't gr. Turns out, it's gr really hard to focus on the lesson, when nobody can stop you from doing literally anything you want. And I, lacking ~~self-discipline~~ self-discipline had spent almost every Zoom meeting with my microphone turned off, playing computer games. 86

The problem is, when people are forced to study, they'll take every opportunity not to. That's gr why I think that a full online schooling can be effective only in senior high school when kids voc would rather study for their exams at home, than wasting time and nerves on attending school in person.

But socialization is necessary for everyone, no matter the age group. So, if you're planning on switching to a full online schooling program, make sure to find yourself a "third place". For example a park, where you gonna voc meet up with your friends, or a small community, where people share the same interests as you. ~~108~~ 108

I do think that it is advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major. Let's take a look at our average teen: they just turned eighteen and finished highschool. What now? Connect, college. But how to properly pick a major? That is a whole other question which is hard to answer. Let's take a deeper dive.

Teens are radical. They can quickly change their interests and go from one sphere to another. This sort of teen behaviour can bring some sort of trouble to a young person who is deciding on their whole life and career by picking the college major. Depending on their current interests, one day a teen wants to get a major in history, the other, after watching a movie about Sherlock Holmes, they want to become a detective, forgetting about the history major. This can go on and on, you get my point. How can they decide once and for all then? Consulting with parents might help a lot. Parents are older and wiser, most of the time they know what career and major will suit their child better, of course taking the child's interests in account. For example, my older brother loved a lot of things such as literature, cars, talking to people, sports. He and his parents decided that his best interest is the one for cars, he really viewed cars as his passion for life. Taking it in account, he got a major in sales and became a salesman in an elite cars dealership, of course, with the help from his parents.

In the ^{their} end of the day, parents spend a lot of time with ^{always} children. Years pass and parents are ^{always} there for their kids if something is wrong, and picking a college major is one of those times when parents help their children. It may look like a huge life-deciding problem for the teen, but with the help from their mom and their dad, it turns into such a small obstacle they won't even notice it and pass through. Then, in a few years the grown-up teens will remember how they used to stress from deciding a major, they will laugh it off and thank their parents.

"Remote learning through technologies like zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning."

~~I can hardly agree with this statement.~~ It is clear that modern technologies made our lives ^{SP} easier. Nowadays students are able to take lessons without leaving their room. Through coronavirus pandemic, when everyone ⁵⁰ were ^{for} ordered to stay at home for a long time, online learning technology had shown itself as effective one. Despite this fact I will never consider it equally effective compared to the lessons at school.

When you need to go to the school, spend time with your teachers, when you are able to have eye contact with them you feel much more motivated for studying. Offline communication with teacher makes student more encourage ^{for} to study hard. Also one of the biggest pros of traditional learning is an ability to communicate with your classmates offline. You can always discuss topic of the lesson with them ^{for} and sometimes it is really helpful in understanding school material. And no doubt your friends will support you and help your stress relief.

Nowadays, a lot of technologies are used for different purposes. For example, it is common to use technologies like Zoom, Discord and etc for remote learning. But not everyone is concerned that ~~learn~~ learning through these technologies can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. I would like to discuss this topic and give my opinion on it.

Firstly, I believe that remote learning through technologies can't be equally effective compared to traditional classroom learning. In my opinion, people perceive information better while they are learning something on time, in real life. Students usually pay more attention to subject they're learning while studying in classroom. While they are ~~learning~~ learning online, they can be easily get distracted by their phones, family and etc. Moreover, it's easier to cheat if you are learning something online. So, learning through technologies isn't as effective as classroom learning.

Secondly, I suppose that remote learning through technologies is worse than in-person classroom learning because of the budget of students. Not all people have access to study online. To study remotely you need to buy special a special equipment that can be expensive. Furthermore, it can be hard for teachers to pay attention to all students if they're studying online.

In fact, there are some advantages of remote learning too. For instance, remote learning is the best option for disabled people. If someone doesn't have an ability to study at school, they can study online. Education should be for everyone, so that is important to have different ways to study.

In conclusion, I want to say that remote learning through technologies isn't as effective as traditional in-person classroom learning, but it's a great opportunity to study for everyone. Personally, I would choose classroom learning, but in future everything may change.

To be or not to be... a doctor? A teacher? A programmer? That is a question most teenagers ask themselves. There are so many jobs to study and explore! Where to seek advice? I would like to share some thoughts about parents' guidance in the choice of a college.

On the one hand adults have much more experience in this world. They know which jobs are well-paid and which are not. Furthermore, parents ^{have} known their children for even longer than kids ^{have} known themselves – all the child's life, in fact – whereas teenagers don't usually remember their early childhood. Also, no one can deny that parents usually want their children to be successful. Family, in my opinion, is the most important thing in the world and it is no good to ruin your relationships with your parents even for a job.

On the other hand parents sometimes transfer their own personal traits ^{to} their children and try to persuade them to work where ~~the~~ children do not want to. Sometimes it is the job adults once wanted, but did not get or else it could be their own professional sphere. But children are not their parents, so of course adults should not be allowed to make the choice. Moreover, parents grew up in different time and have a different mindset. But I think all those issues can be solved in a simple family discussion.

All in all, I do think it is advisable for children to seek guidance from ~~their~~ parents when deciding on a college major. But the actual choice is always for the teenager to make, it's up to him or her to ~~decide~~ make decisions about ~~their~~ _{his or her} future.

Nobody can deny that deciding ⁵⁰ a college ¹⁰⁰ major is a significant part of every teenager's life. Some ~~adolescents~~ prefer to do it on their own, and some ask their parents to help them. So, I would like to give my own opinion on this issue.

First of all, I agree ⁵⁰ with those teenagers who listen to their parents' advice on choosing ¹⁰⁰ a college major. To my mind, during childhood ¹⁰⁰ and ~~teenage~~ people tend not to understand themselves as much as their parents do it. Adult people watch their children grow ¹⁰⁰ and know a lot about their interests, so ¹⁰⁰ they are ¹⁰⁰ definitely likely to help kids with ¹⁰⁰ deciding on a college major. For example, a baby may not know about his/her talent in art, but the parents can notice it from his/her small age and advice ⁵ might college major, which will help in developing these ¹⁰⁰ skills. ¹⁰⁰ Logic & what skills! talent!

Furthermore, children should seek for ¹⁵⁰ guidance from their parents when choosing ¹⁰⁰ a college major because it is always important for every ¹⁰⁰ profession. As a person can be a great doctor if his/her ~~parents~~ ¹⁰⁰ are qualified, doctors, too. In ¹⁰⁰ other words, listening to parents' advice can help you not to forget in what type of family you are growing and, may be, continue your family business of life.

All in all, parents will definitely play a big role in every human's ¹⁰⁰ life. ¹⁰⁰ Deciding on a college major is rather difficult and you can go through it by being together with your beloved people. ²⁵⁰

Covid-19
~~Coronaviruses~~ caused a lot of changes even in our daily routine. Nowadays studying remotely is common for everyone. Technologies like zoom and other applications are very popular all over the world. The adaptations to them was quite hard though.

I can agree with the given ~~with~~ statement. Modern technologies are really helpful for the studying process. For example, internet conferences can be held even in the evening, as you can just join them from your phone or ~~computer~~. I had an experience of remote studying a few years ago. I really enjoyed ~~it~~. I ~~could wake up~~ woke up not that early because I didn't have to travel to my school. It was much more interesting to study online because computers offer more opportunities to cooperate between ~~teacher~~ and students. I also enjoyed the breaky because I could talk to my parents and grandparents because I was at home. 145

With the technologies progressing almost every day, I can see future generations studying online with a big interest and equal effectiveness. In my opinion, ~~there's~~ there's a big room for developing technologies.

Despite the fact that learning remotely has a lot of advantages, there are some drawbacks still. For example, home atmosphere can disrupt students from learning. Also, there is an opportunity to cheat at some tests. What's more, online education means less communication between the students as all of their break-ups they ~~will~~ ^{stay} ~~spend~~ at home.

However, ~~the~~ remote studying and learning technologies is ~~an~~ the early stage of development. In the near future they will become much more popular. People just need time ~~for~~ to adapt. 116

In past few years remote education has become really popular among people who want to study. It is rather convenient to learn new things online, but can remote learning through technologies like Zoom be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning?

I think that no. These things can't be equally effective as offline education is a lot better. Firstly, while studying online you may have such a wish as to cheat. And cheating is really bad for your education, because it can make you feel lazy and not wanting to study and to make your brain work. It is really not effective and even harmful in some way, as later you might have struggles with studying. Secondly, while learning new things online, these things might be really difficult to be explained properly. So, there may be troubles in understanding them later. It is also really hard for teachers to make their students interested in their subject while teaching online, as there are very few sources of such possible entertainment. Thirdly, being educated online one can't feel the other. That may create the emotional gap between the two people. Whereas while studying offline you can interact with the other person directly and without any hesitation. You can also see one's real emotions. 210

Online education has its own pluses, of course. Especially, its convenience in location, which can be any place with access to the Internet. Also online courses are usually much cheaper than offline, ~~but it doesn't decline my previous statement at all~~.

In conclusion, I think that all these ways of getting education are worthy and in some way compelling. But offline education is the best one, ~~as it was created long ago and~~ in my opinion. 62

Some people consider that remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning but the other ⁹ cannot approve [✓] this suggestion. I reckon that remote learning can be even more productive than in-person classroom learning.

To confirm my opinion, I ^{am going to} share ⁵⁰ my experience. When I was ~~14~~ ¹⁴-year-old girl, I had traditional lessons of the Spanish language. It was ^{pretty} useless because I had to come ^{over} ~~at~~ ^{to} long distances ^{to} reach [✓] tutor's house to learn the language. After a year I decided to try remote ¹⁰⁰ learning ^{of Spanish} with another teacher. Then, ~~my Spanish~~ I improved my Spanish ~~in~~ ^{at} ~~2 times~~ ^{2 times} as I didn't have to spend so much time and effort to have a lesson. Since I had more energy I started to learn information faster, and be ¹⁵⁰ ~~more~~ ^{more} nimble.

Furthermore, if ^{one} ~~you~~ ¹⁵⁰ does not have to spend time for road, he or she can ¹⁰⁰ learn new information instead. For instance, my friend, Lerae has had online lessons of the Japanese language and in her freetime she learns new Japanese words. However, if she was necessary to waste time for road, she wouldn't learn something ¹⁰⁰ ~~new~~ ^{new}. That's why remote studying is more ~~effective~~ ^{productive}.

To sum everything up, remote learning can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. However, it is really important to have self-discipline. Without self-discipline one will not be able to learn lessons effectively and productively. ~~level~~ ¹²⁵⁰ ~~level~~ ^{level} of knowledge heiges ¹²⁵⁰ on person's eagerness. Thus, if ^{one} ~~you~~ have both ¹⁰⁰ of them (self-discipline and eagerness), there is no doubt that remote learning will be as productive as traditional studying.

Task 1. (1-5) Read the text and choose the correct option.

Transfer your answers onto the answer sheet.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing "academic integrity and promise." A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous "tip" that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings' grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

1. Seagrove Academy was
 - A. a school for gifted students.
 - ☒ B. a school with many wealthy students.
 - C. a school where many kids lied and cheated.
 - D. a large school where it was hard to get to know people.
2. What is clear about the student who accused Elizabeth of cheating?
 - I - The student is a former friend of Elizabeth.
 - II - The student does not want anyone to know who he or she is.
 - III - The student is either lying or mistaken.

- A. I only
B. I and II
☒ C. II and III
D. I, II, and III
3. Which of the following is best described as brazen?
A. A dog chases a cat up a tree.
B. A little girl wins the National Spelling Bee with hard work.
C. A man walks his dog during the rain.
☒ D. A woman steps in front of a bus to make it to stop.
4. Why is Elizabeth so sure that she will learn who has accused her of cheating?
A. Her friends will help her.
☒ B. The community is so small.
C. She thinks the person will come forward.
D. She thinks the person will be the recipient of the Blauvelt Award.
5. The Blauvelt Award is important to Elizabeth because it will
A. prove she is intelligent.
☒ B. help her pay for college.
C. make her parents proud.
D. prove she did not cheat.

Creative writing. Topic №2.

Undoubtedly, work plays an important role in people's lives. Some people work more, ~~some~~^{others} work less, but there is an accepted standard workweek of 40 hours. There are ideas that consider reducing the ~~some~~ amount of ~~work~~ working hours to 30. I think that it is a very bad idea. ~~It will be~~ 18

First of all, if the government ~~will~~ accept this suggestion, people will work less and less products will be produced. It may lead to economic recession and even ^{be} hunger in the country. That's why this idea is unacceptable. 86

Secondly, ~~this idea will lead to~~ if this idea will be accepted by the authorities, people will be more likely to relax. They will be lying on their sofas and ^{watching TV} ~~doing nothing~~. It may lead to obesity and problems with heart. ~~It is~~ Countries should create conditions in which citizens can be healthy and this idea ~~considers absolutely~~ is the worst thing that government can make for the nation. 146

Thirdly, if the presently accepted standard workweek of 40 hours will be reduced to 30 hours, people will waste more money on entertainment. ~~and they can even~~ It may lead to deficit of money ~~in~~ families and ~~people~~ with time people ~~will not~~ be able to afford even buying things for basic needs. 194

To sum up, I think that reducing the amount of working hours is a very bad idea. People think that it will allow them to live better but, in fact, their lives will be much worse if the suggestion will be accepted. 23

lex It's argued that the 40-hour workweek should be legit decreased by 10 hours. This essay completely agrees with this opinion. Most workers today don't have enough time to relax p due to the long workweeks which leads to increasingly high 9 level of stress and nervousity.

Many adults state that they can't really spend time on things they like because of exhausting long workdays. They complain that they leave their office at 6 o'clock, return to home 2 hours 9 later, dine and already have to go to sleep. Some of them even say that they don't see their family much. A perfect example 100 of this is my uncle: he works for 8 hours every day so in the evening he feels too tired to go to the gym or visit a museum. As a result, he usually stays at home and watches TV.

de What's more, statistiques from ~~well-known~~ 150 well-known companies like BBC show that people with 40-hour workweeks are way less lex happy than those with shorter workdays. These researchers also state that because of tiring everyday work adults become more stressed and, in certain cases, stop enjoying their lives at all! For example, my dad used to work all day some years ago but he realised that he was struggling to find just a little bit of time for himself. So he decided to leave this job and get a new one. 200 He's really happy with his decision now. ^{with shorter workday}

On the whole, I'd definetely say that government should think about reducing²⁵⁰ the standart worksheet^p to 30 hours because it will help adults to live their whole life and self-develop as well as ^{lex}
make they less nervous ^g

1. Since 2020 Zoom has had a great affect on many people. Some say that remote learning is equally or even more effective than classical in-person studying. At the same time, some claim the opposite. I will discuss both of these points of view.

To begin with, I want to highlight some pros of online studying. First of all, online classes save plenty of time. For example, one-two hours a day could have been spent on way to school and back home, but instead a student has an opportunity to have more sleep or do some productive activities. The second positive side of learning through technologies is that it is very comfortable to study in a calm, quiet and peaceful atmosphere at home rather than sitting in a crowded classroom with that white lights turned on. But at home, it can be even possible to study in your bed with a cup of morning coffee or tea and a cat lying next to you. I am sure that almost every person will choose the second variant. The last argument I want to give is that during online learning you can make screenshots or even screenrecord the class and use the materials in further studying.

Talking about the cons, it can be said that online studying does not allow a person to have face-to-face contacts with classmates and teachers, and that is why a lack of communication can appear. But what is worth mentioning is that it is ideal for shy people and introverts, because they can feel comfortable and peaceful during such lessons. For example, if you have to do a group project, it can be difficult to organize group meetings and calls, express your ideas properly, there is no such thing as non-verbal communication in this case. Also if you have never met anybody from your class in real life, in my opinion, it will not be possible to build strong friendships and develop trust to each other. The other big disadvantage of remote studying is that for some kind of people it is hard to organize themselves to study, hard to get encouraged to do something, this type of studying is usually suitable for only hard-working and determined people.

In conclusion, I can say that personally I prefer to use both of these types of learning. For some subjects it is okay to attend an online class, but some demand a traditional classroom participation.

The statement goes like this: "High school students can benefit from having part-time jobs while attending classes, and I completely agree with it. In my opinion, it is exceptionally difficult for a student to have a part-time job while studying, but at the same time, it was the students who decided to apply for the job, and through hard work ⁵⁰ will manage to combine these tasks and succeed in them. In this essay I am going to examine all the advantages and disadvantages of whether the students can benefit from having part-time jobs or not.

To begin with, ¹⁰⁰ having a part-time job can be really useful for students, because while studying they will be able to experience themselves as workers and maybe get necessary knowledge for their future job. What is more, students will also be able to spend their earned money to hang out somewhere with their friends or buy some presents for their families ¹⁵⁰.

However, having a part-time job while studying means exceptionally hard work and the lack of free time. Consequently, coming home exhausted after school, students will have to do some other tasks at their jobs, that are often much more difficult, ²⁰⁰ than the ones at school. Furthermore, students need to be very determined while having a part-time job as it requires completing tasks, instead of spending time with their relatives and friends.

To sum up, I would like to say, that having a part-time job while studying is an extremely difficult task, that ²⁵⁰ not everyone student can handle. But with great effort and hard work, students will be able to benefit from having part-time jobs, while attending classes.

generally agree with this statement. I personally believe that distant learning nowadays is equally effective as the traditional education. With the development of computer technology, caused by the notorious COVID-19 epidemic people are now able to communicate properly without any significant drawbacks. Now there is absolutely ^{no} need ~~to~~ for tutors and pupils to travel from one part of the world to another, just so ~~the~~ ^{SP} could clearly see and hear each other. What is more, when learning online both can feel comfortable and without ~~the~~ ^{no} need to leave homes, which can lead to even more enthusiastic and lively discussions than in some kind of disorienting and distressing classroom. Finally, there is ^a also more opportunities ~~to~~ of using various online test pads and other educational programs in order to even further enhance the study process. However, some people disagree with that way of tutoring. They think that staring at computer for hours can damage one's ~~person~~ sight and cause many mental ^{SP} illnesses. They also say that it is very easy to cheat on online tests, which can lead to false grades.

Considering all of the above, I still think that online learning is very ^{even} effective. You can easily ²⁰⁰ avoid health issues by simply doing ~~little~~ ^{hex} breaks and going outside. Speaking of cheating, ~~lots of educational programs support~~ you can just ask students to turn on cameras - as simple as that! You can easily track where pupils' eyes are looking, especially ^{when} ~~studying~~ ^{hex} eye to eye.

The bulk of the evidence shows, that online learning ^{via Zoom, Skype, Teams and other useful apps} is safe and comfortable. This way of studying is equally ~~important~~ simple and effective as traditional way of educating, and sometimes it is even more competent, because it can really bring difference to the learning process. ^{SP/hex} 279

Is it advisable for children to seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major? In this response lex lex In

Col In To my personal view, I strongly agree with this statement as I think children should be ^{so} discussing any serious matter with their family because they are far more experienced in life and must know something the child does not. So surely, seeking assistance when it is time to choose a college major from parents is highly ~~advised~~ advised and will not be useless choice.

However, some people ~~may~~^{also} say that there are specific ~~profession~~^{professionals} whose ~~overall~~^{purpose} is to help on deciding ~~whether~~^{the best major for the child by evaluating their achievements.}

At some point degree this opinion is correct, however, parents should still always be included ~~in~~ⁱⁿ discussions ~~about their~~^{concerning} their child's future. The parents have raised their child, thus they ~~are~~^{are} aware of what strengths and weaknesses their kid has and will always take them into account on such discussions. The child could be oblivious to their weaknesses, so parents are essential to talk to as well.

To sum up, ~~as a student~~ children ~~are~~ ^{greatly} advised to ~~seek~~ ^{ask} guidance from their parents when ~~to~~ discuss their further life choices including ^{major} deciding with their parents, as they ~~are~~ wish only for the best for their child and are willing to ~~support~~ ²⁰⁰ guide them on their journey. Surely professionals exist to make it easier and it ~~is~~ ^{is} also a good choice to meet up with them, ~~but~~ ⁹ ~~just for~~ ¹⁰ but seeking assistance from parents is, in my opinion, essential. ¹⁰

Nowdays we can't imagine our lives without education. If people don't have any education^{or} degree, they automatically become black ~~sheep~~^{swans}. In modern labour market ~~struggle~~^{are} performed a lot of different and required ~~jobs~~^{jobs}, like a MR-manager, ^{an} IT specialist and so on. Talking about online learning, there are ~~a lot of~~^{many} advantages of this way of studying. It seems to be the most convenient technology for students.

Firstly, I ~~want~~^{can} to mention, that remote learning expands horizons and helps students living in a countryside house or ^{disabled} students. When ~~child~~^{gr} hasn't any facilities to study, but he understands that ~~it~~^{it} is such a ^{100%} necessary process, he can join in online school and has online lessons. For this purpose ~~students~~^{or laptop} need only a Personal Computer and stable WI-FI connection. It is very easy, but helpful for children all around the world.

Secondly, can we not forget about higher education. Almost all ~~students~~^{gr} want to strive higher education, but not all students are ~~allowed~~^{allowed}. Some of them change opinion and prefer to have a gap year and work ~~at~~^{at} this time. Others ~~don't~~^{gr} have much money for payment. Unfortunately, a higher education costs a lot. But in modern reality we have distance learning. It means, that ~~nowdays~~^{gr} students can study in any University they want thanks to remote learning. These uni-programms usually cost ^{twice} cheaper, than face-to-face programmes. Another plus of this type of education is ~~an~~^{an} opportunity to combine studying and work. If I were ~~a~~^a powerful ~~and~~^{and} long-distance living person, I would prefer to study online. Remote learning also ~~give~~^{gr} students more free time, which can be used for sport, hobbies or, sure, work.

In conclusion, I believe, that both online and in-person learning are ~~are~~^{are} effective. For in-person learning the main advantage is full-time studying and better understanding ^{of} lectures for ~~lozy~~^{lozy} students, but for online learning is convince and available development.

Most of the people all across our planet have got jobs, which they either like or not, but all of us grasp that going to work still can be extremely exhausting even if you adore your profession. So, would it be better to reduce the presently accepted standard work week of 40 hours to 30 ones?

On the one hand, of course, it will lead to having more leisure time, for example, for hobbies. People will also have got worry less about their work which is great too since ^{overwhelming} consequently we will have got less health problems based on stress.

On the other hand, I believe that reducing the standard work week may also be not useful but damaging for the economics. It can merely slow down, since people will not work as much as they had done before. and producing various things will become more complicated. Or if we think of the doctors, who we need every day, without them working as much as they do right now, we will not be able to just take care of our health timely. Unfortunately, it may lead to terrifying consequences such as people's deaths.

In my opinion, it is better to leave working hours as they are currently in our world. Although I would like to work less, as everybody I understand that it may have a quite awful impact on economics.

In conclusion, I must admit that reducing working hours sounds like temptation. We had better deliberate everything critically though.

It is widely agreed that children should seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major. Personally, I do not agree with the statement. People around the world suppose that parents' guidance can help their children to make a correct decision concerning their future. In my opinion, it is a misconception. Let me explain why.

First of all, it is a common fact that if a child is in a family of, for example, lawyers, her or she will be a lawyer too. I am sure, that some teenagers from such families would not like to have the same job as their parents have, but they do not want to let their parents down and stop the "tradition" of the family. Such children are under the pressure, that is why they should try not to seek parents' guidance and make the decision themselves.

Secondly, some parents would like to make their dreams come true by using their children. It is an extremely frustrating situation when your parents do not listen to your opinion and make some decisions about your future job themselves. I suppose, that in such cases these situations can affect not only teenagers' professional potential, but mental health too. As a rule, it can lead to the mental exhaustion in the near future.

In conclusion, I believe that it is important for a child to be able to make his or her own decisions about the future profession and not to listen to other opinions. You can do whatever you want in your life.

Many people claim that remote learning through technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. The following essay takes a look at both sides of the statement.

First of all, the main advantage of remote learning is that person can create his own space for studying at home. This will make the process of education more comfortable and more effective for student. Secondly, studying online can give more free time, as there is no need to go somewhere. This leisure time student can devote to his family or to his hobbies. Another benefit of online studying instead of a traditional in-person classroom learning is that sometimes person can be shy and not ready to speak to the audience or to the class. So, in-person learning become a huge problem. The way to solve this problem is to choose online education.

Likewise, there is some drawbacks of remote learning, for example, a person, sitting at home and studying remotely, can feel lonely, as there is no people around him like in traditional in-person classroom learning. Another negative side of studying online using technologies like Zoom is that there can appear some problem with having a border between private and studying live. Consequently, there can also appear a problem with relationships between a person and his family, if there is no personal space for studying.

To sum up, there are some positive and negative sides of remote learning. I suppose, that studying online using technologies like Zoom is quite a good idea, but everyone should think carefully before choosing this type of education.

АПЕЛЛЯЦИЯ

Прошу рассмотреть вопрос об изменении моей оценки по предмету Английский язык с «51,33» балла (-ов) на «53,33»
балла (ов) по причине неверной оценки задания "creative writing". В работе присутствуют 4 ошибки из раздела
"Грамматика", что по критериям - 1 балл из 3 баллов.
Соответственно баллы за задание должны составить
18 баллов а не 16. Так как иных ошибок для снижения баллов по критериям нет (присутствует 1 оши-бка в разделе "Словарь и пунктуация", но по критериям - 2 балла). Таким образом сумма итоговых баллов за задание должны составить 18 баллов.

There is no doubt that college education plays a significant role in our lives. When deciding on a college major, a child should be aware of all of the options. Today, I am going to explain why I agree that children should seek guidance from their parents when deciding on a college major and address some of the most compelling reasons which could be used to challenge my opinion.

First, it is a known fact that parents are far more experienced in making study and career decisions than their children due to their age. Thus, the children can receive a good piece of advice which might help to decide which college major to choose. Some might say that not all the parents have enough knowledge about modern job market but I disagree because there are many professions that will always be in demand.

Second, there are children who want to do the same job as their parents, in which case it is very beneficial to seek guidance from their parents because they can tell about all of the advantages and disadvantages of the job. Some might say that parents do not always tell the truth but I disagree because they want what is best for their children.

To conclude, I believe that parents should be actively engaged in their children's education and future. It is common knowledge that parents want what is best for their children, which is why I do not think it is a bad thing to ask them for a piece of advice, when deciding on a college major.

Nowadays choosing a college major has been an actually vital topic for the discussion. Young people want to find the discipline that would be their cup of tea. There is an opinion that children should consider their parents' advice on the decision.

On my humble opinion, I ~~reckon~~^{reckon} that it is a great thing to seek guidance from your parents in case of them ~~being~~^{having} a lot of experience and knowledge. Our parents are the nearest and closest people in our life and they would never suggest us something wasteful or even illegal. Moreover, there is a tendency of continuing family business and heritage.

Nevertheless, there is a view that children should make a decision all by themselves. In ~~that~~^{such} case nobody would be accused of suggesting a wrong major. Students even take a gap year in order to try different jobs and find out whether they are interested in it or not.

However, I strongly believe ^{and recommend} ~~that~~ students to listen to their parents and nearest and dearest. That is mainly because they have known you for your whole life and they have a specific opinion on your preferences and on what is up to your liking. That is why they would give an advice based on your interests and lifestyle.

To sum up, I would say that seeking help from your parents is normal and extremely important as they would never let you down and wish unhappiness. Having your personal opinion is awesome and making a decision on your own is also outstanding but we should never forget about our family that can actually give ~~you~~ a worthy advice that might make your life even better.

First of all, I disagree with this statement, because traditional in-person classroom learning is much more convenient as person can ask teacher about different questions. At the same time, in Zoom, for example, person can do it too, but when all cameras classmates turn off, person can be a bit shy and don't ask an important question. Moreover not everyone has enough experience to download something programms, but when person study in a class, there is no problems with it. Also person can have some problems with the internet connection and he/she can't normally listen to lesson. Besides, in some areas internet is really expensive. For example, in ~~India~~ India and how he/she will study?

Online studying is an interesting way to solve the problem of learning. But not in all countries, it can be done. I think that the biggest problem of using online studying is cheating, because ~~teacher~~ teacher can't find cheater. IT specialists do some programms for it, but it can't help us to find cheater easily. As for studying in a class, cheating here is really dangerous, because ~~teachers~~ teachers have their own ways to solve this problem. For example, ~~students~~ must put all electronic gadgets in bags before exam, and you can come to the toilet only with a special person.

But studying online has its advantages. Person can communicate with people all over the world and practise his/her language. Person can have new friends and talk with them in every place of the world. Obviously, he/she can find a native speaker living in other country and call to him/her. I think the main advantage is that distance can't depend on person. At the same time, online studying is really important in epidemic times. In my country it was coronavirus and he with all my classmates start studying online and I don't have this awful disease in my life.

Nowadays is the century of highly developed technologies. Nowadays when we are surrounded by high-tech gadgets, people ~~all over the world~~ ^{all over the world} argue a lot whether learning through modern technologies like Zoom can be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning. Personally, I think that learning online with the help of such programmes as Zoom cannot be ~~as~~ ^{as} effective ~~as~~ as traditional way of learning. To prove my opinion I will give some reasons and examples.

First of all, when you learn online you stay at home or at another place but not in a classroom. This means that there are dozens of factors which can disturb you, for ^{too} example ~~it~~ it will be harder for you to concentrate on your studies when you sit at home in a cosy atmosphere and there are lots of things that you can do during ^{the} online lesson. ~~Studying~~ ^{Studying} in ~~the~~ ^{the} classroom involves total concentration as the teacher keeps the discipline and you aren't able to use your phone or do any other things except studying. ^{Sp}

Secondly, learning online can't be equally effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning because it is physically harder to learn online. When you study online you sit ^{at} ~~in~~ one place while when you study in a classroom ^{too} you usually walk when you have a break. Learning ~~on~~ ^{on} gadgets for a long ~~the~~ period of time can lead to headache and it can be hard for your eyes. All these factors mean that you become tired faster when you learn online and this means that you need more time ²⁵ to understand the information and your concentration is far worse than if you study in a classroom.

Taking everything into consideration, learning through technologies like Zoom is far less effective compared to traditional in-person classroom learning as learning online is less disciplined and only learning offline involves ~~a~~ full concentration on studies.

Elizabeth was brooding in her room. She had sought asylum there since spurious gossip about her began circulating at Seagrove Academy last week. Not that Elizabeth had ever been considered a social butterfly. She preferred to live vicariously through the stories of her more brazen friends: late night partying, fraternizing with boys, childish pranks. Still, she had taken to being more by herself than usual since the allegations surfaced.

She was up for consideration for the highly coveted Blauvelt Award, a scholarship recognizing "academic integrity and promise." A student had given headmaster Billings an anonymous "tip" that Elizabeth had cheated on several tests this year. The accusations were laughable. Elizabeth had long been a stellar student at Seagrove. She lacked a natural intelligence – this was true. However, she compensated for this deficit through diligence and perseverance; she was very thorough in her studies and exhibited an almost relentless determination. Still, the accusations had given the recommendation committee pause. On Friday Elizabeth had been called to Mr. Billings' grand office, where she was asked copious questions about her recent exams. The experience was quite traumatic.

Seagrove was an elite school. Most of its students came from privileged backgrounds. This was not the case for Elizabeth. Her family had little money. She attended Seagrove on a full scholarship. The Blauvelt Award would help her family pay for college. So, it was with the same diligence which she applied to her studies that Elizabeth planned to unmask her accuser. She opened the school directory on her bed and began combing through the names. Seagrove was such a small and insular community. Twenty-one kids would be in her graduating class. Elizabeth knew it was inevitable that the person spreading rumors about her would come to light. It was just a matter of time.

In developing and supporting your position, be sure to address the most compelling reasons and/or examples that could be used to challenge your position. You should write about 250 – 300 words.

I agree with the statement that says that the presently accepted standard workweek of forty hours should be reconsidered and potentially reduced to thirty hours. There are different reasons for it and I would like to discuss all of them in my essay.

First of all, ⁵⁰ one of the most important reasons for reducing standard forty hour workweek is that it leaves very little free time for people. Rest is essential for every human and too much work can very badly affect on people's physical and mental health, so reducing the standard workweek can actually improve people's health.

Secondly, ¹⁰⁰ thirty hours workweek will provide more time, when people can spend their money, for example on leisure activities, so reducing the time when people have to be busy ~~working~~ would improve the economy of the state.

Somebody probably will ask me: "How working less can improve the economy of the state if people would do less job?" The answer ¹⁵⁰ to this question is - they won't! Different experiments showed that working too much can make people less effective, because humans have limited energy which they can spend on work. Statistics ²⁰⁰ shows that people who work for thirty hours a week are proved to be as effective or even more effective than people who work for forty hours workweek. That means that giving a person more time to rest can make him more productive.

Some people think that there is no difference between online and offline education, however, others disagree by saying that online education cannot replace traditional schools with face to face learning. In this essay I am going to analyze these two opinions and express my personal view on this ~~issue~~ debatable issue. Let me start with people who agree with the claim.

Nowadays a big number of technologies appear. Programmers develop new it-products for online education such as websites with diverse functions. For instance, Google provides an opportunity to have video-conferences, create presentations and write documents with other students in real time. This app helps to organise meetings and other group work with classmates.

Another advantage of ~~offt~~ online education is that anybody can stay home during different weather conditions, illness and other ~~surcomstansis~~. In 2020 the world faced with the pandemic Covid-19. It was unleagal ^{Voc} to stay out during this time but new technologies helped students to continue their education even though they could not attend schools.

Therefore, sitting all the day at the table, watching the computer screen is harmful for people's health. These things can lead to some diseases. For example, after Covid-19 a huge proportion of students had problems with their eyes and backs, due to the lack of activity.

Secondly, sometimes it can be difficult to study some disciplines like Chemistry, Physics and Biology alone without any equipment. Some subjects need to different work in groups.

I tend to agree with thouse who said that learning from home cannot be as much effective as offline education because of some significant disadvantages that affect on students. Undoubtedly, new technologies help pupils everyday but they cannot fully replace some advantages as communication and activities of real schools.

балла (ов) по причине 1) в задании № 9 (Vocabulary) я считаю, что ответ В (face to face) также подходит к ситуации, описанной в предположении, так как имеется в виду спор

2) В задании № 4 (Grammar) мой ответ «clear for Clara

данном в задании предположении и подходит по смыслу.

3) В задании № 1 (Grammar) мой ответ «left as подходит под нормы грамматики и не искажает смысл, заложенный в предположении.

4) В задании № 4 (Vocabulary) мой ответ «export» подходит

Remote learning is a new way to study. Thanks to modern technologies, like Zoom or Skype, you can attend classes from different part of the world. As for me, remote learning is more effective than in-personal learning. And I can tell why. ex

If you have a high temperature or you are in another country, but you have to attend the lesson, you can just open your laptop or phone. With your gadget and programmes like Skype or Zoom you can easily join the lesson and take part in it. Moreover, you do not have to waste on road, like you do it while going to school. ex

There is a second benefit of remote learning. You can ~~hear~~ you listen to your teacher while driving your car or having lunch. So you can combine your activities and have more free time. For example, when I am on my way to school I am listening to my online courses and do some notes on my phone. ex

But if you want to contact with your classmates, remote learning is not for you. Some students can not study well without personal attention from teacher and surely they will choose in-personal learning. 2

Anyway, remote learning has more benefits than traditional learning. (During online lesson you can always) You can always save your online lesson and watch it again ^{and} again to repeat the material. So if you do not want to waste your time and it does not matter do you have live contact with your friends or not, remote learning is the best way to study. 2

People have various points of view on whether they face some challenges ^{and} ~~and~~ benefits after their school graduation. ^{Voc.} ^{gr.} graduation of school. Now I would like to express my opinion on this issue and explain it. 33

To begin with, I consider this transition to be beneficial for students as it helps them to make communication ^{gr.} ^{gr. friend?} between different people. Also, they have enormous changes in their life which can lead to getting used to new environment, rules and people. For instance, ^{young?} people can have a better source of inspiration and they will have a will to attend classes. 61

Moreover, thanks to this transition, ^{young?} people learn to behave in a right and proper way. They learn to do everything by themselves and without any help at all. As a consequence, they get rid of childhood habits and become more mature. 41

However, being ^{Voc.} asocial, some students have difficulties in understanding new things. It is complicated for them to get used to the new way of life. As a result, they may have worse marks, and students ^{gr. Future?} will not follow the curriculum at all. Автор расширяет аудиторию. Если речь идёт о переходе из школы в университет, то это речь о young people! Иначе странно звучит 3 параграф, где речь идёт о судьбах от детства привычек!

Nowadays college plays an important part in our life. However choosing a college major can be challenging for some children. Because it defines their future. To deal with this issue, they try to use different sources of information and guidance from their parents is one of it.

It is well-known that many children think that parents can't help them with choosing a career due to different reasons. For instance, in their opinion parents are not ~~modern~~ enough or that they don't understand them as their friends do. However, parents' advice are the most important ones. Firstly, they know you more than anyone. Secondly, they have a rich experience under their back, so they will not let you make any mistakes that they did when they were your age. Sometimes parents may not accept some of your choices but they do it only for your own good. For example, they know that the job you want may not suit your personality or the salary ~~there is not big enough~~, or it is a life threatening job and so on. Besides, advice of your friends or classmates may not always be right exactly for you, as their interests can differ from yours.

In conclusion, I would like to say that seeking guidance from ~~the~~ your parent when deciding on a college major is really important, as they are those people that wish you only the best and will ~~help~~ always help you with anything, ~~so you should~~ ~~remember that~~ especially with serious choices that define your future career and life in general.
